Have you ever thought of South as a machine?

The machine here at South starts off with raw materia consisting of freshmen. At the end of its run qualit graduates are produced. While each unit has alot i common with all the other gears there is still a sense being unique.

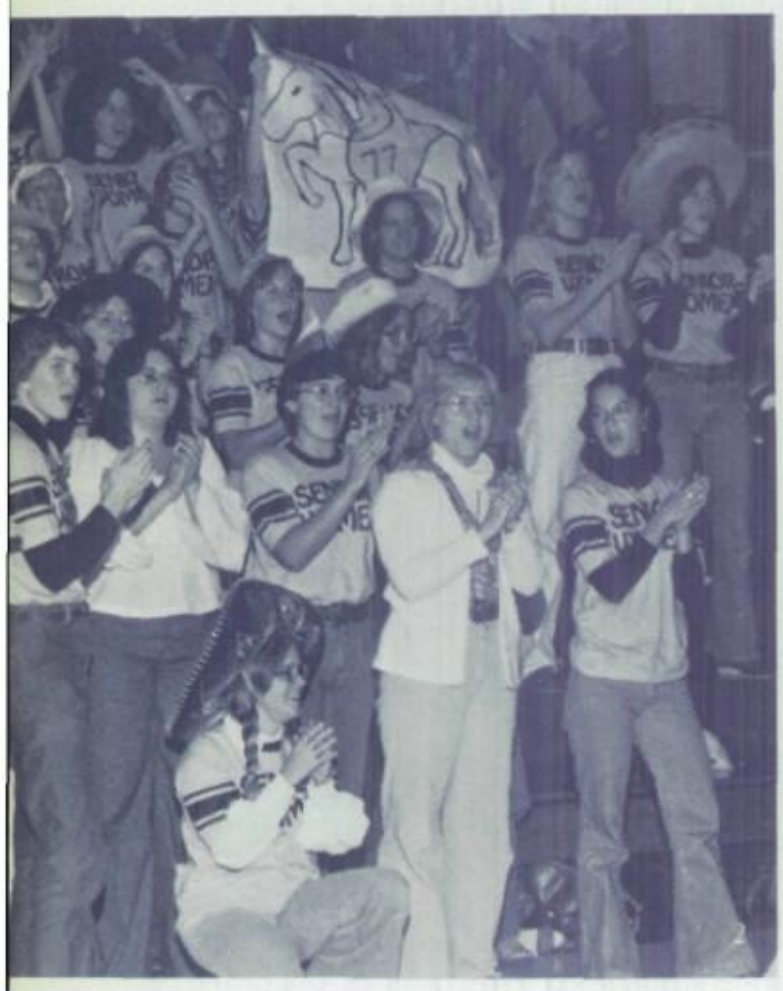
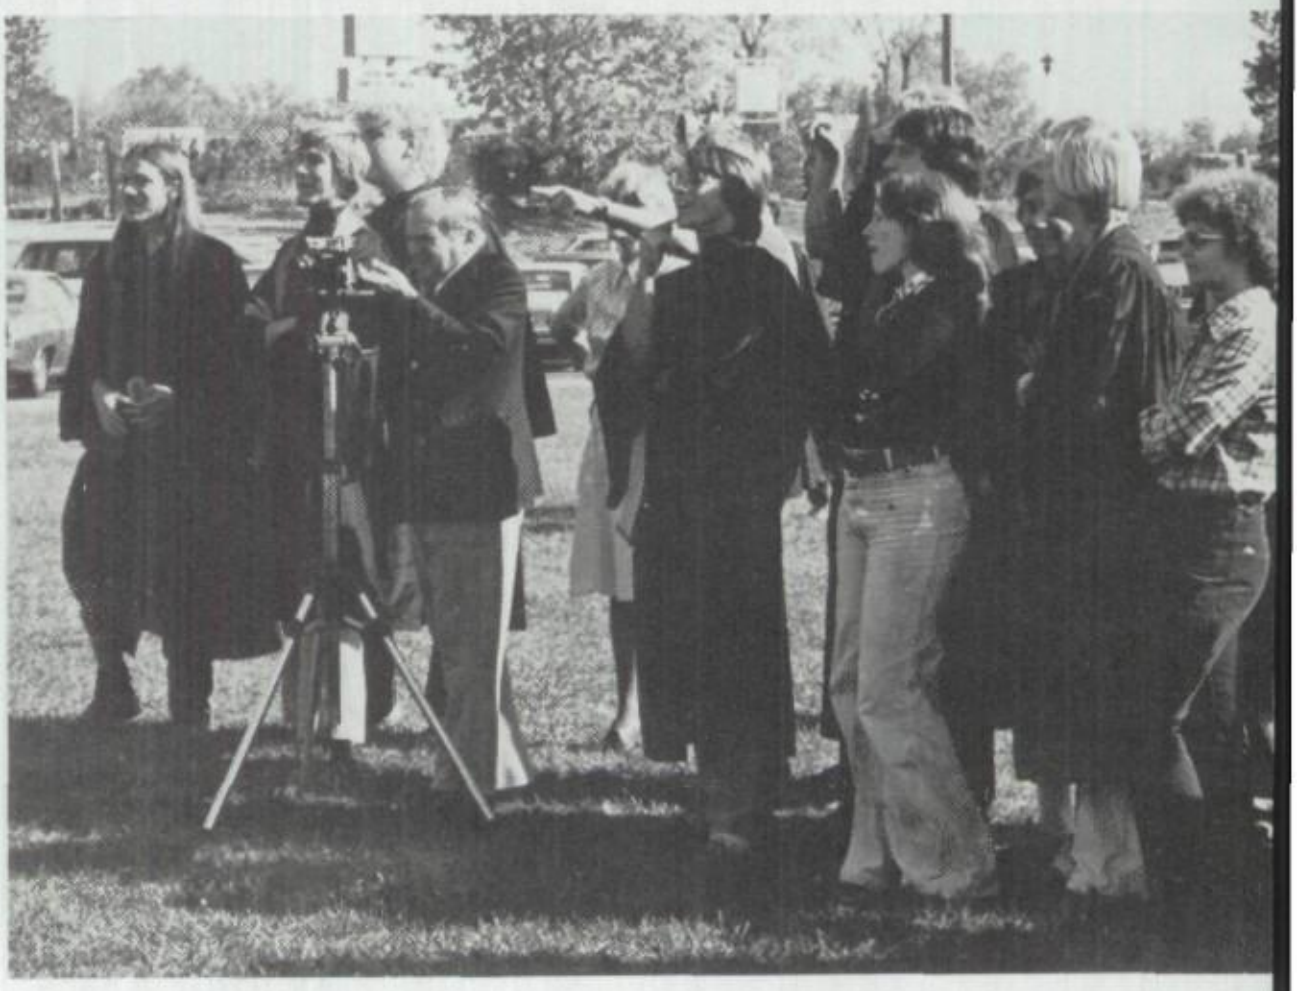
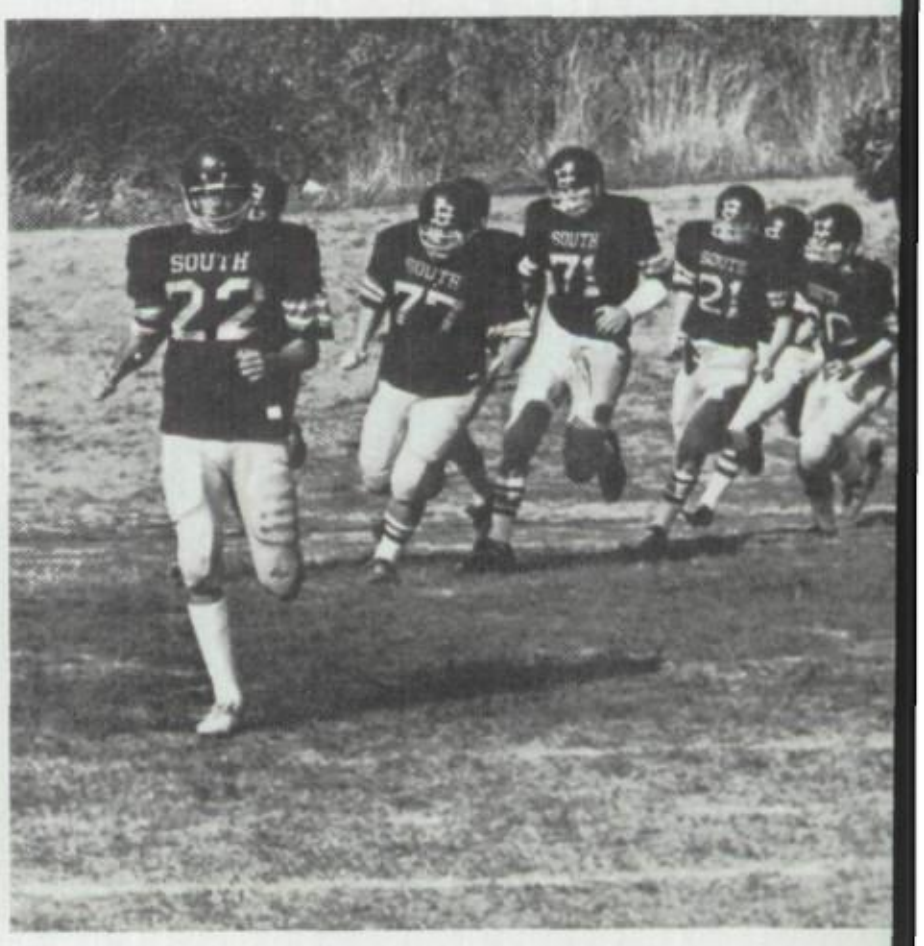
1. In the Magazine assembly, Sharon Eggerding, Diane Albers, and Stephanie Spitz clown around with Mr. Eggerding.
2. Varsity player Ann Hoerber drives a hard spike at two North opponents.
3. 20 minute lunch periods do not provide Juniors with enough time to recover from a morning filled with classes.
4. Debbie Martin tries to recover keys from a locked car.
5. Home Ec II gives Gini Whistle, Vicki Mirly, and Cindy Kidd a chance to experiment with different foods such as fried okra.
6. South students show off one of the biggest fads to hit this years market — rugby shirts.
7. Jim Ederle files down plastic into a shape for a project in Shop I.

Is this machine always smooth running?

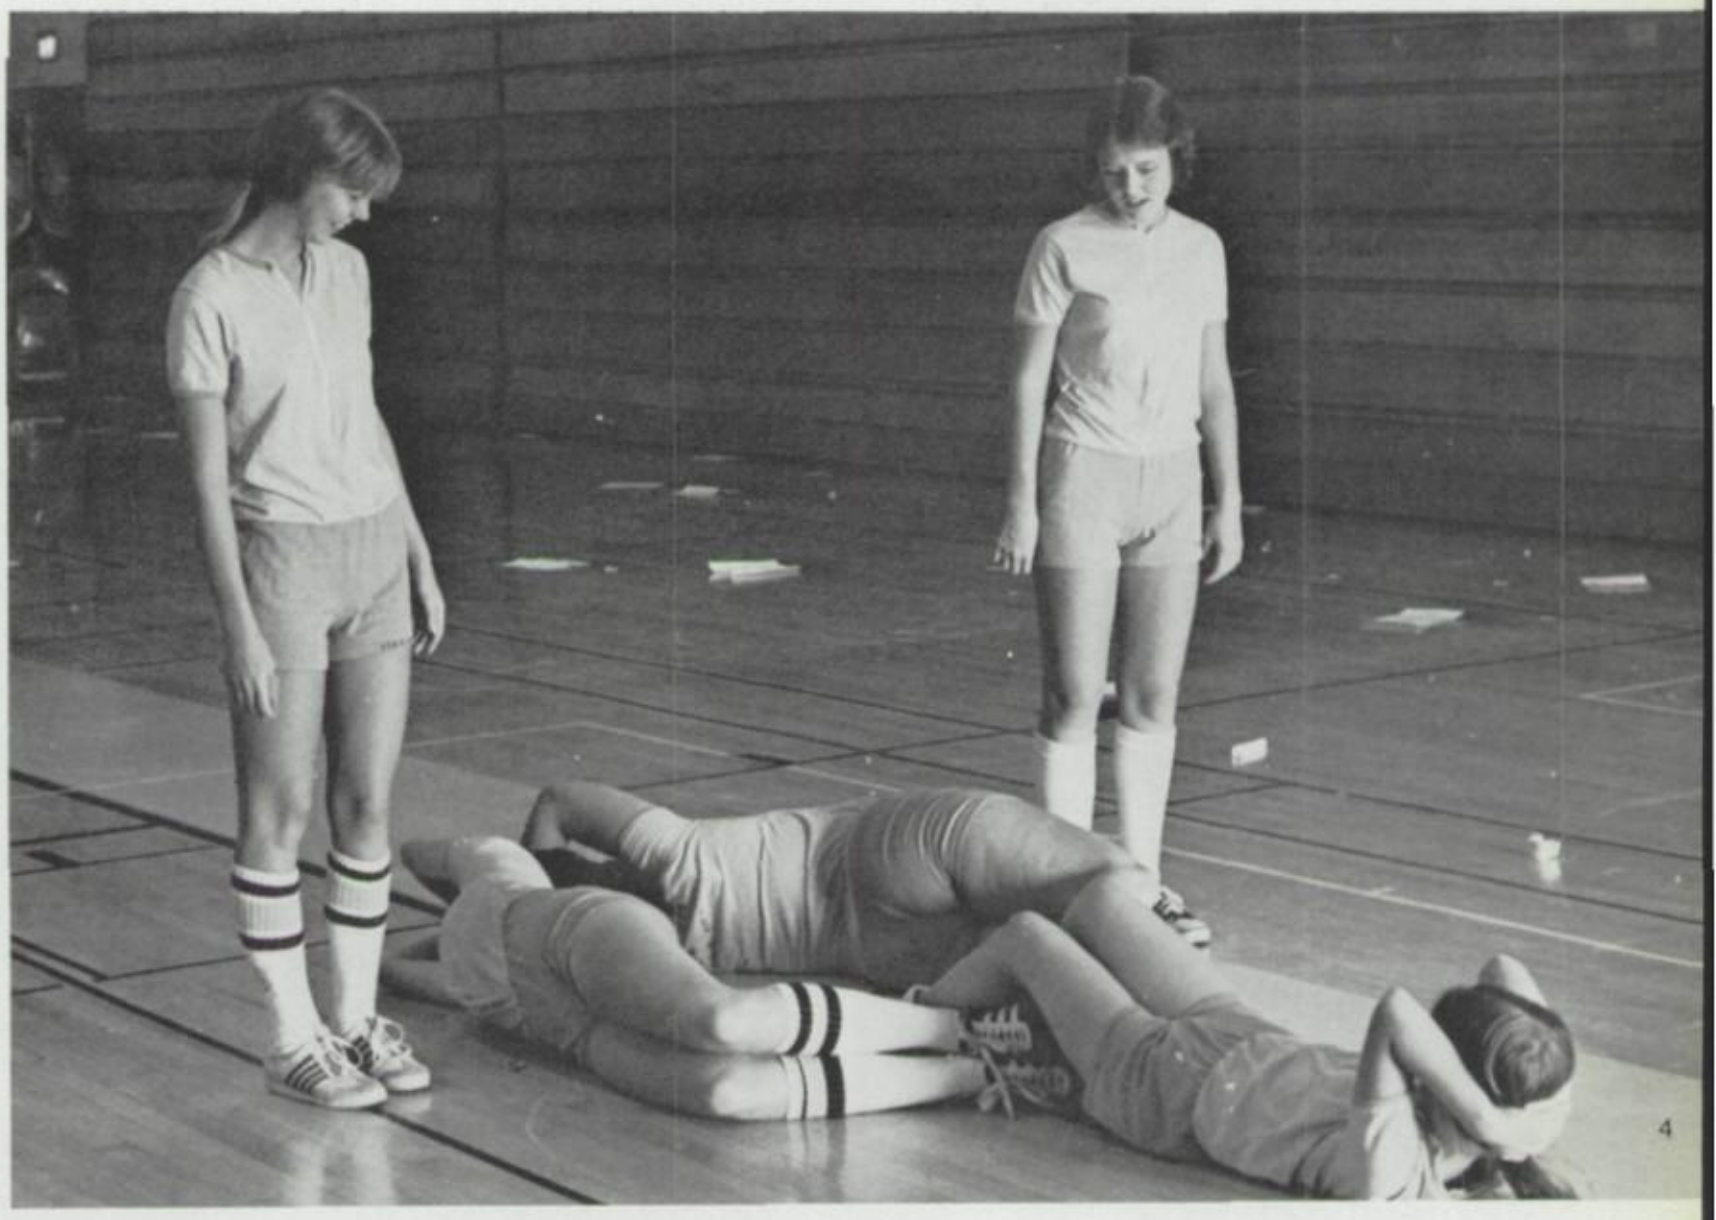
No! The week before exams this machine excellerates as students go to teachers pleading for extra credit work. At times the gears are too efficient and clocks run five hours ahead. Other times the gears refuse to click and then the bells stop ringing and the heaters freeze up.





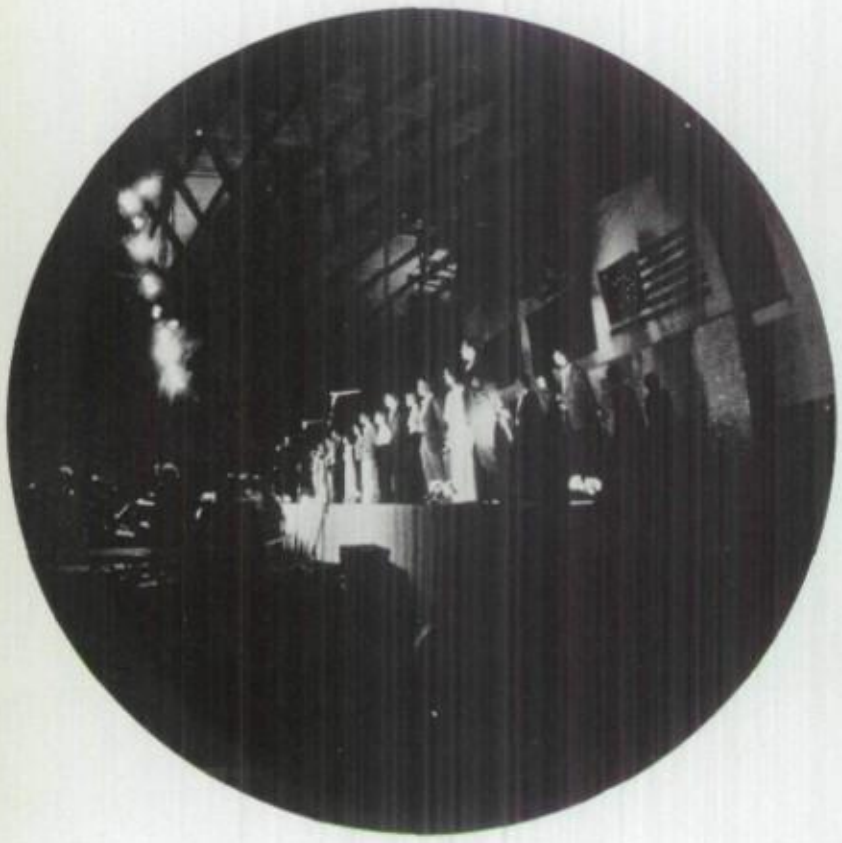


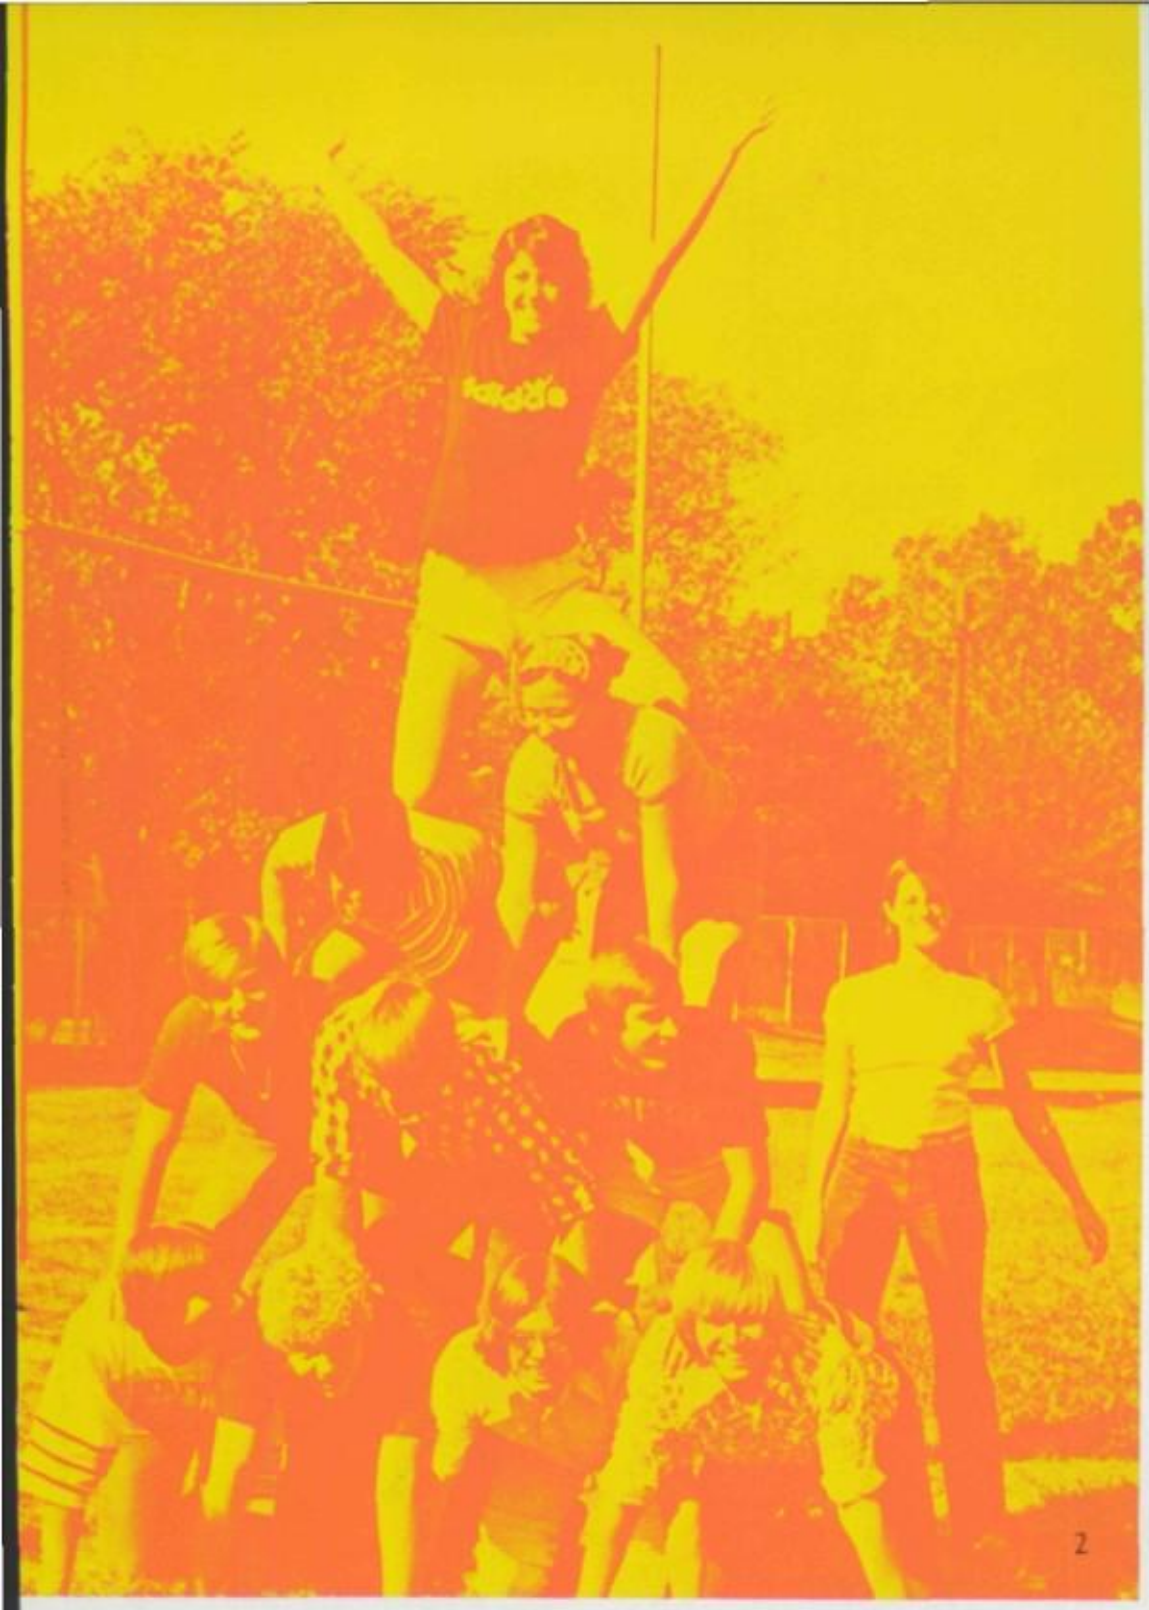
1. In the Homecoming pep assembly freshmen and sophomores try to win the Spirit Stick.
2. For Spirit Week proud Senior Women wore hats and T-shirts to show their class spirit.
3. Members of the student body gather in the front lawn to watch as the Sunrisers get their picture taken.
4. Freshmen-Sophomore girl's gym classes pretended they were parts of a machine.
5. On Lancer Day Kathy Brink and an alumnus share an umbrella while rooting for the Varsity Lancers.
6. Fans cheer on the side as the Lancers rush onto the field ready to meet Coutry Day.
7. Mrs. Pieper doesn't need a cash register to figure out the cost for D'Lisa Richardson's candy bars.
8. Scott Zwart keeps up with current events by reading the newspaper in Contemporary Issues class.



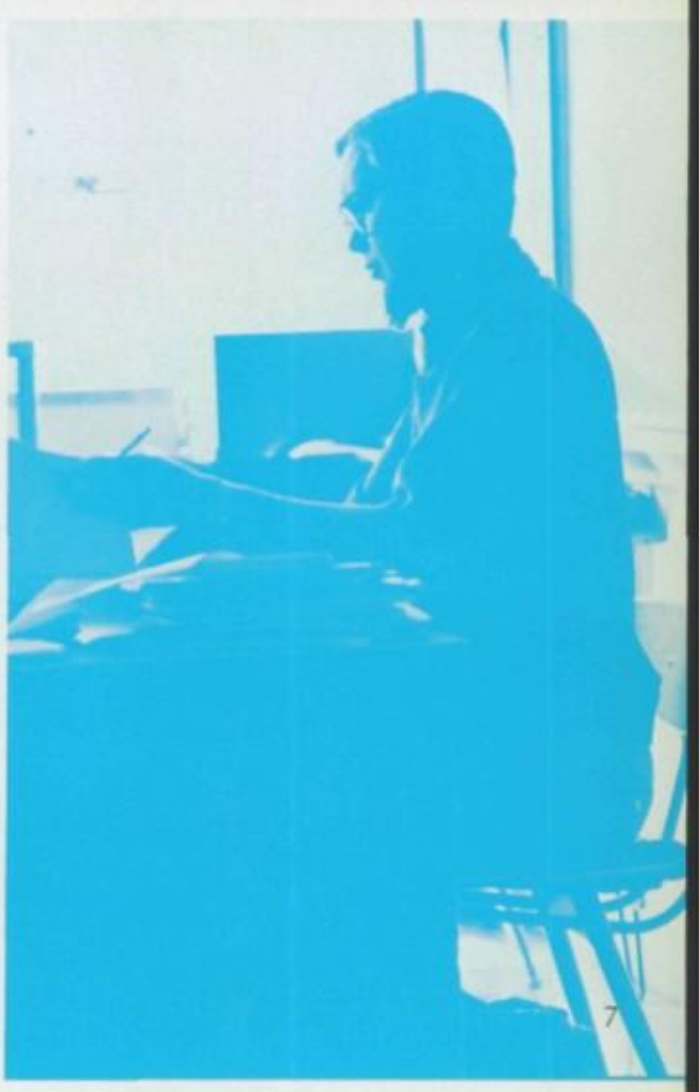
Is there such a thing as too much togetherness?

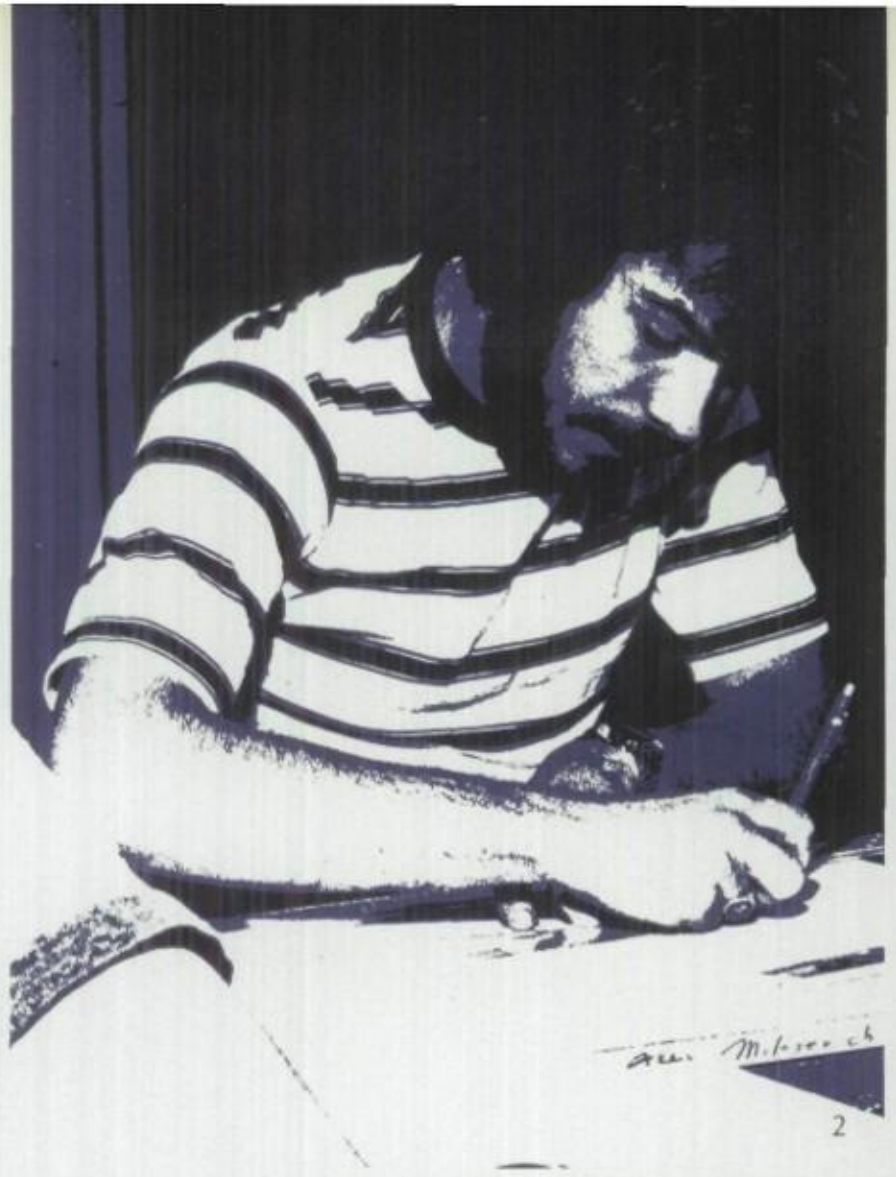
Yes! In the halls when the 3:20 bell rings people rush to the nearest exit and giant mountains of students seem to be formed. Between classes the halls become an obstacle course. People learn very quickly the art of dodging. This talent can later be put to practical use in crowded shopping centers and rock concerts.





1. Religious Drama class practices for a chapel to be given in various grade schools.
2. The yearbook class took on another challenge and proved by building a human pyramid, they were more coordinated than Mr. Roma's English I class.
3. South's near-professional photographer Dave Gesko observes as Mr. Guise takes underclassmen pictures.
4. John Hopkins in Mechanical Drawing uses compass and ruler for precision drawing.
5. Varsity football players say a final prayer before the game at Columbia, Illinois.
6. Dr. Wiesner converses with Mrs. Markle, a former student of his, before a faculty meeting.
7. Dr. Prahlow sits in the solitude of his room and grades papers.





"Academics is the schooling part of school."

Jayne Hutchins

The average student at South spends over 1,400 hours in classes each year. By graduation, a Senior has taken approximately 42 semester courses, spending over 6,000 hours at school. Because academics take up so much time, it is only appropriate that a new section be added to the yearbook to cover this part of a student's life. This new section catches students in the act of education.

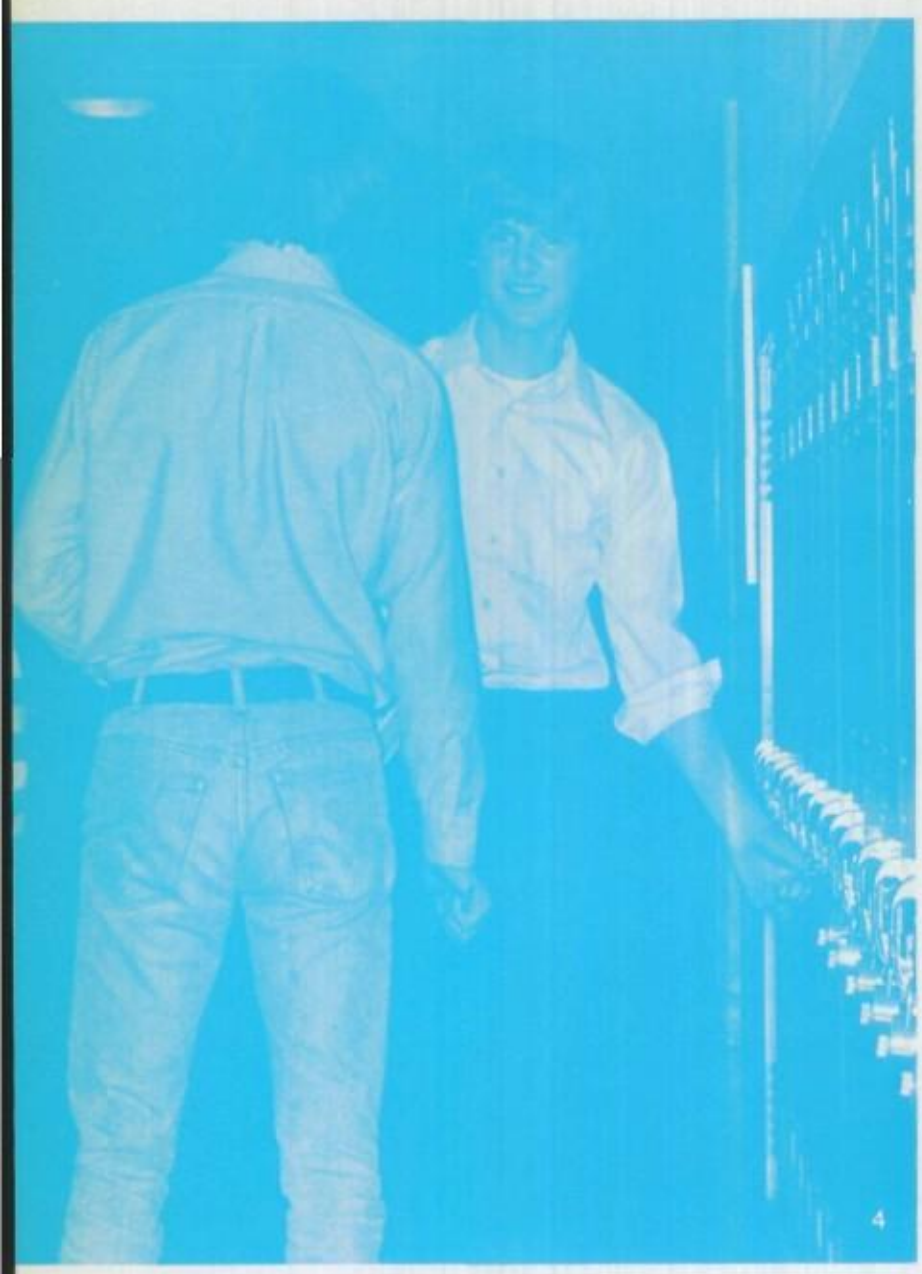
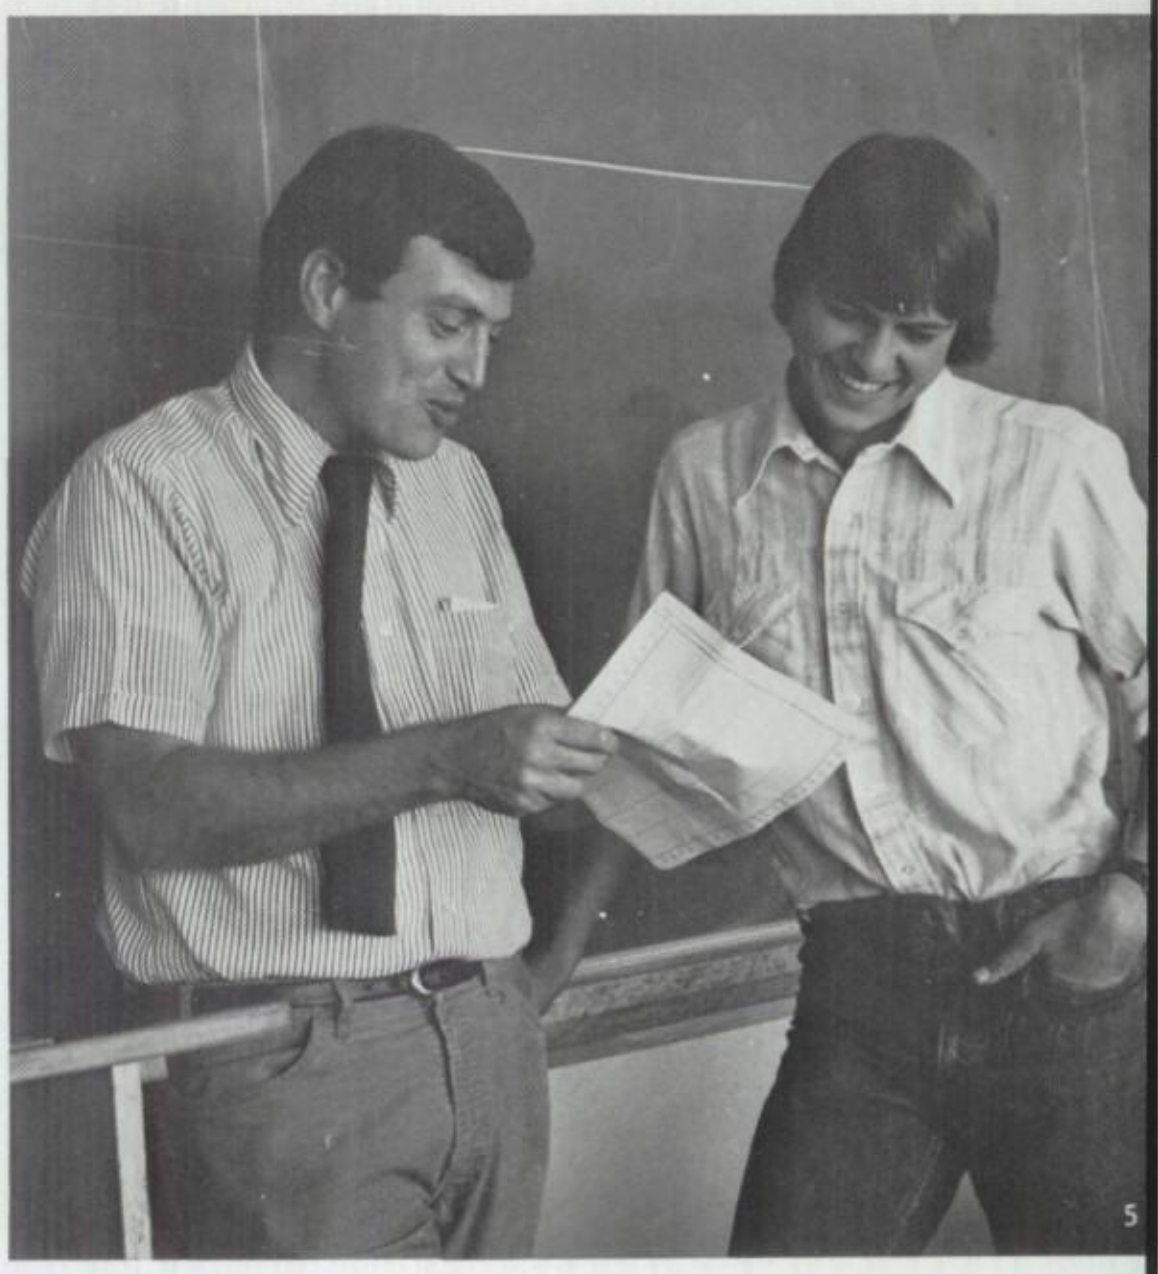
1. Kurt Schmidt experiences the pressure of an American Revolution test.
2. Alex Milojevich prepares a design in drafting class.
3. Lisa Baisch, Sue Ries, and Roy Martin find studying in the library worthwhile.
4. Concert Choir performs "Smiles" on Eighth Grade Visitation Day.
5. Sue Pybass and Carla Potts sample their home-made jelly in Home Ec II.
6. Ed Moorehead's concentration makes Chemistry experiments worthwhile.
7. Steve Mueller learns the basic principles of color in Art I.





"In sociology class we learn how to live together."

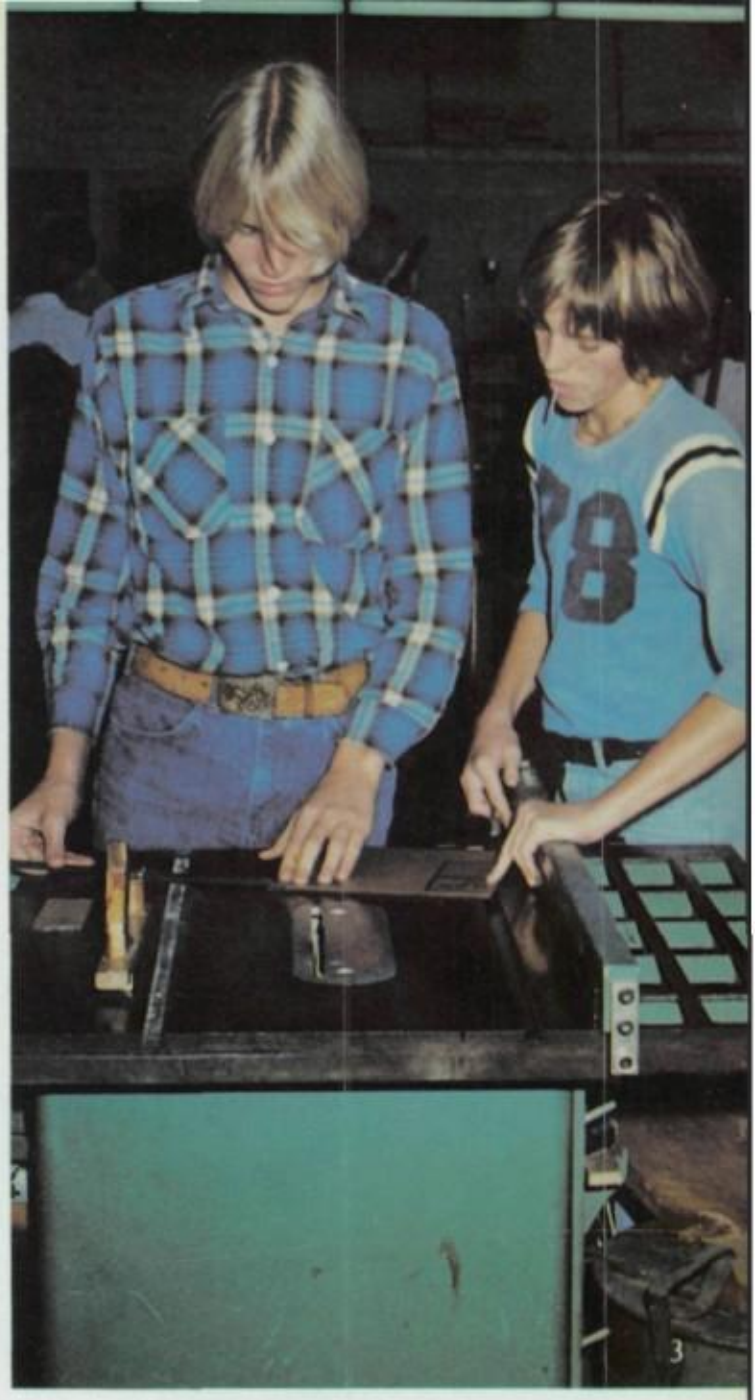
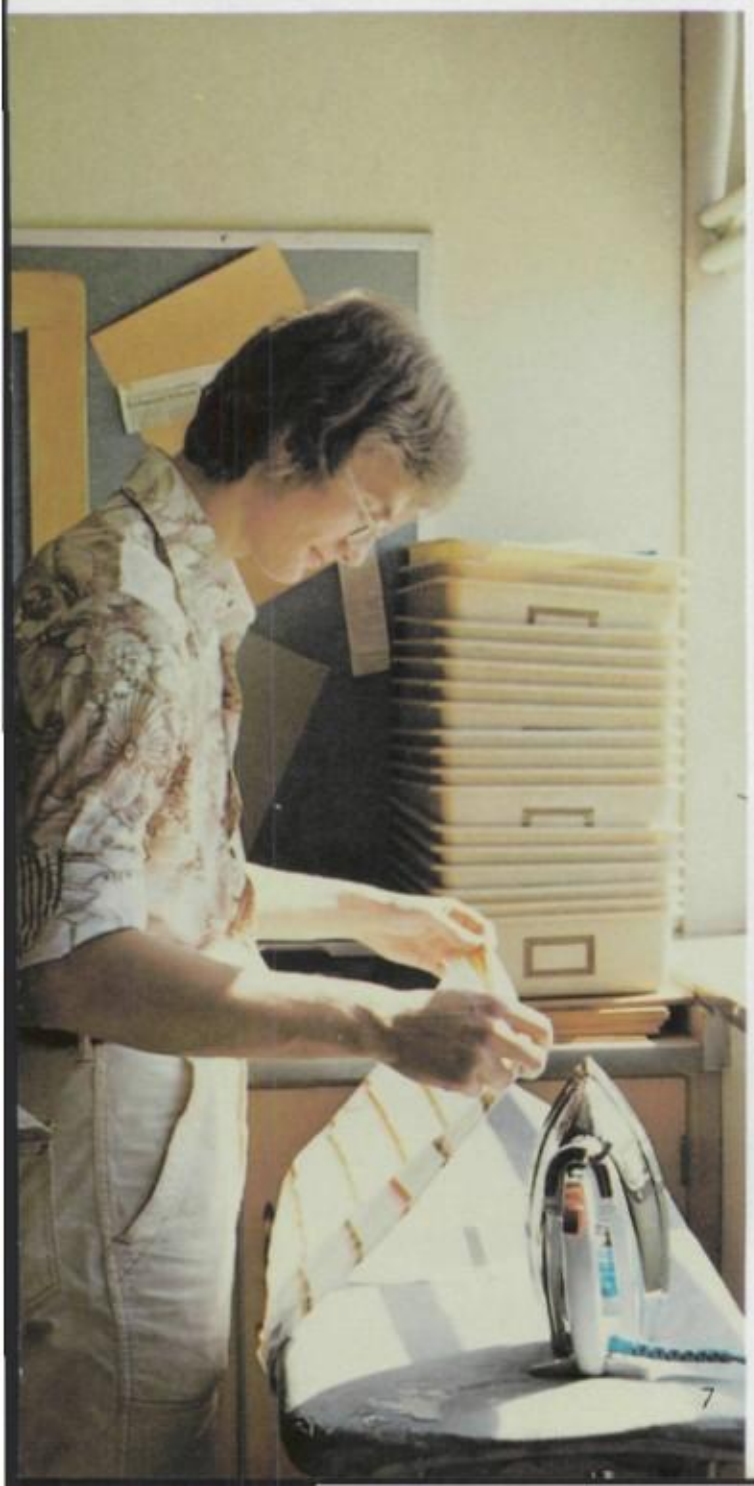
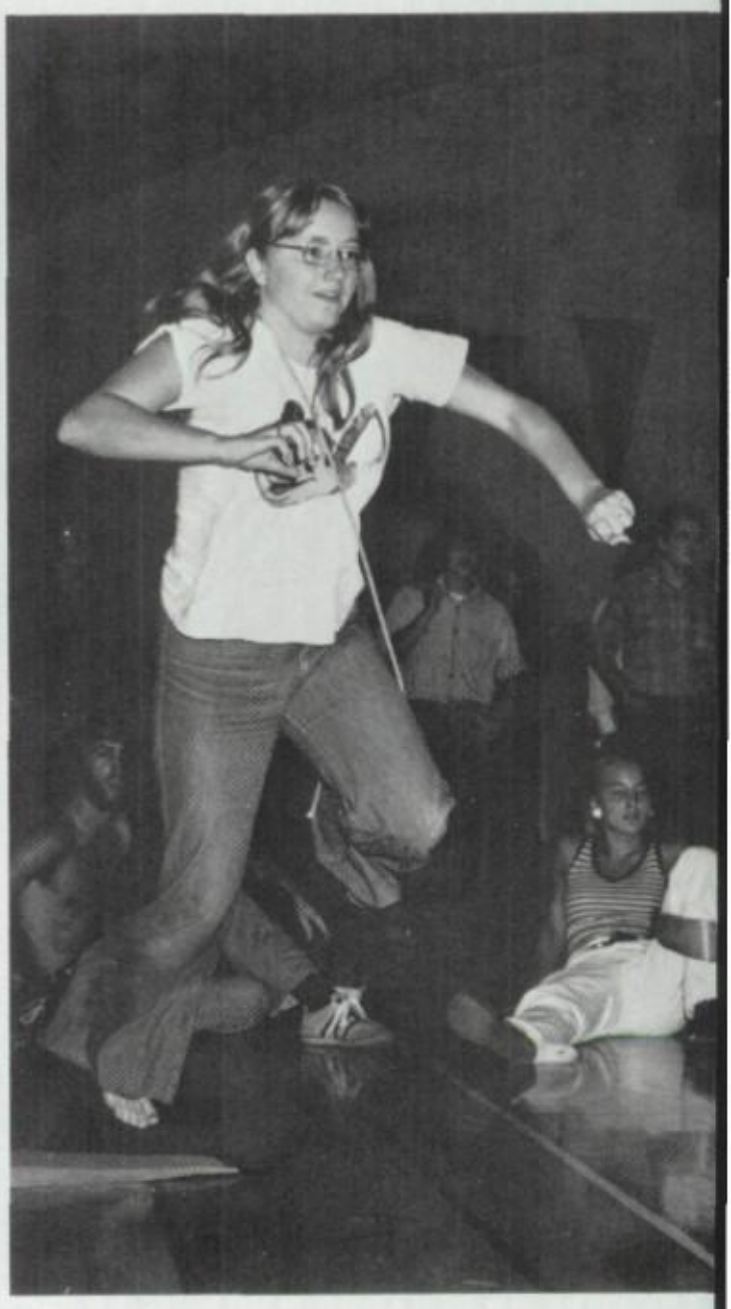
What do students learn at South? Basically LHSS is a college preparatory school. In addition to the more traditional classes such as Sociology and Speech, innovative courses like Depression and World War II and Dramatic Production appear in the curriculum. Every year new and diffe ent courses are available — Religio Drama, Consumer Physics, Readin in the New Testament and Yearbo Production. An elective program this nature allows students to ta courses that they are interested in





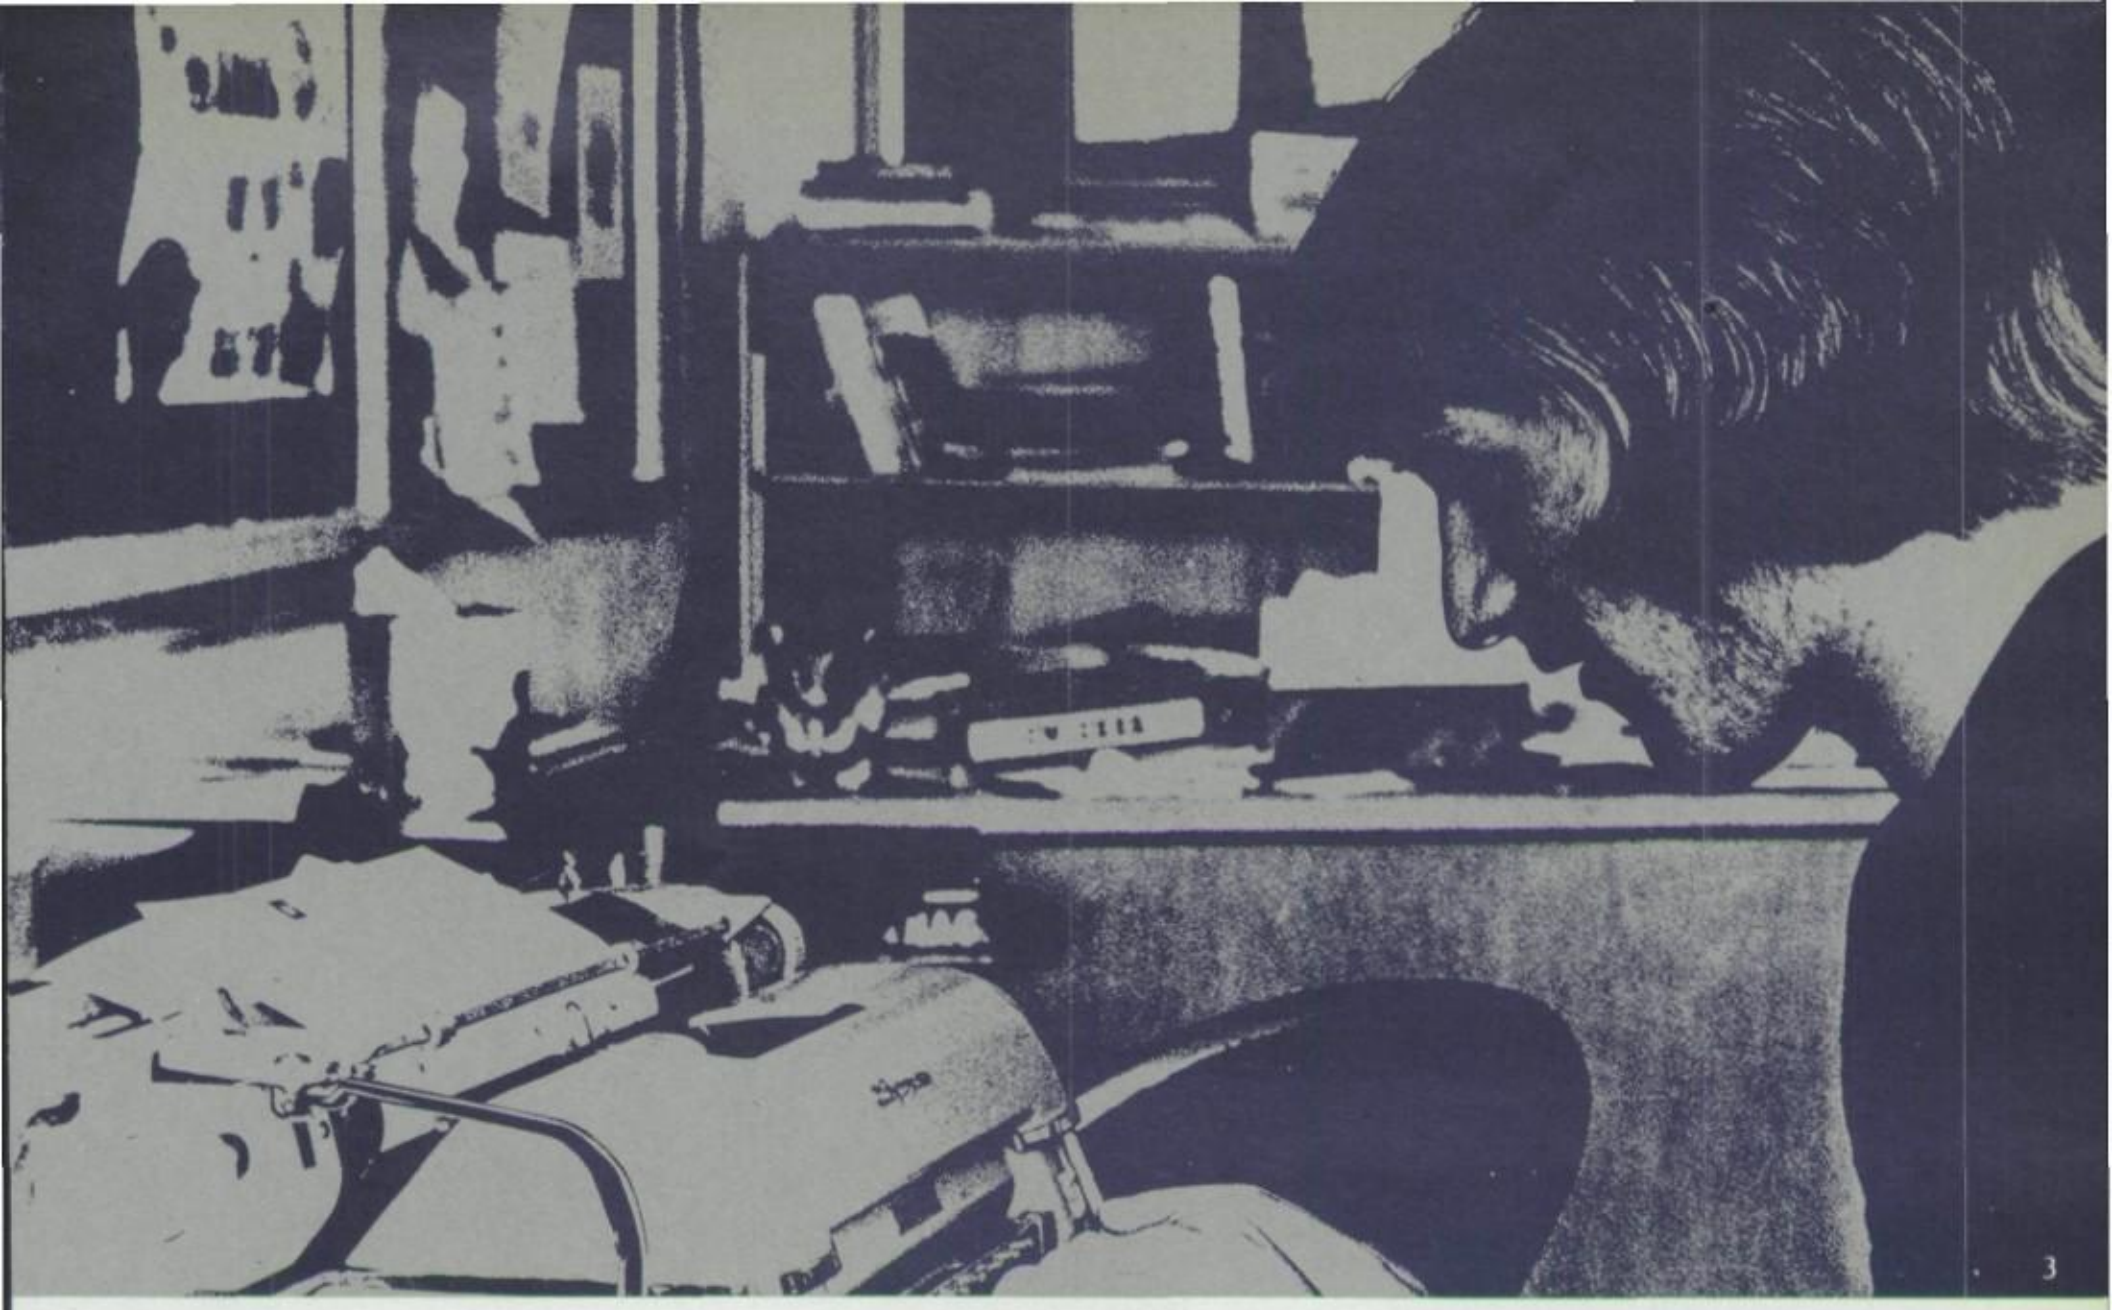
1. In Freshmen Music the students get insight into music principles.
2. Caroline Werner uses a microscope to studying living plankton.
3. Joel Hummel and Joe Jones cut plastic for their project in Shop I.
4. Matt and Mike Gornet stop for a conversation between classes.
5. Troubadour editor, Craig Pankow gets tips from Harry Levins, Post-Dispatch night city editor.
6. Keying down leaves in Biology for taxonomy is part of Tammy Adderly and Terri Boyer's assignment.
7. In Home Ec, Mark Seibert learns the basics for survival by ironing towels.



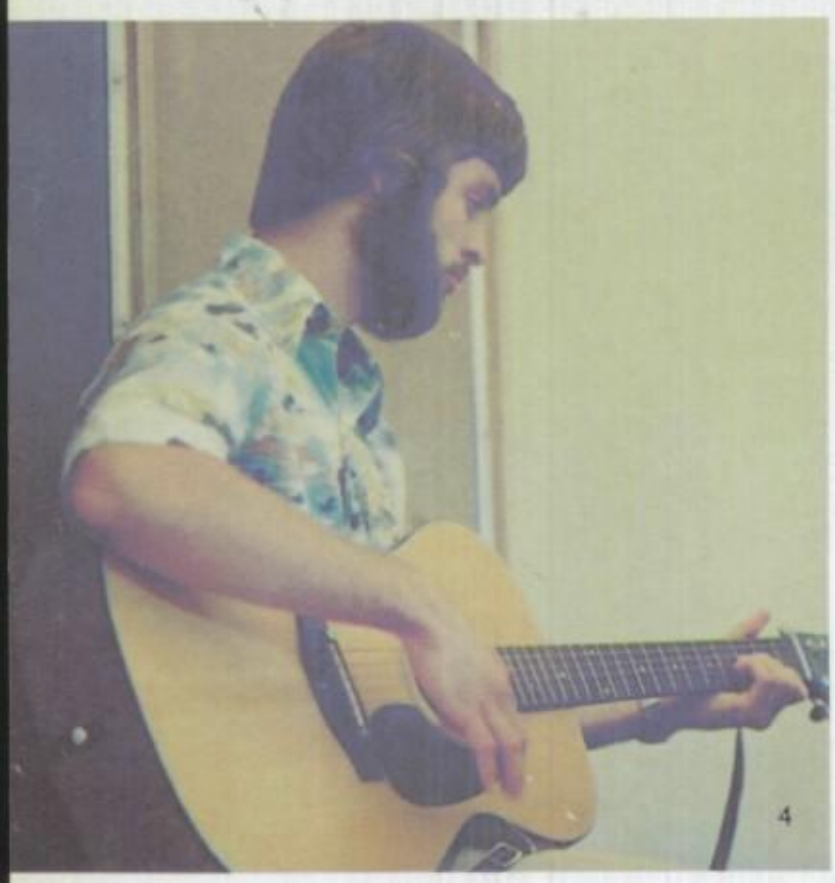
"I think business law will come in handy when I make my first million."

Karen Casper

Vocational classes comprise another aspect in the field of Souths curriculum. Classes such as Shorthand, Accounting and Secretarial Practice acquaint students with methods and techniques that can help ready them for the business world. Guidance counselor David Rohde believes that someone who takes business courses at South is able to get a good office job after graduation.



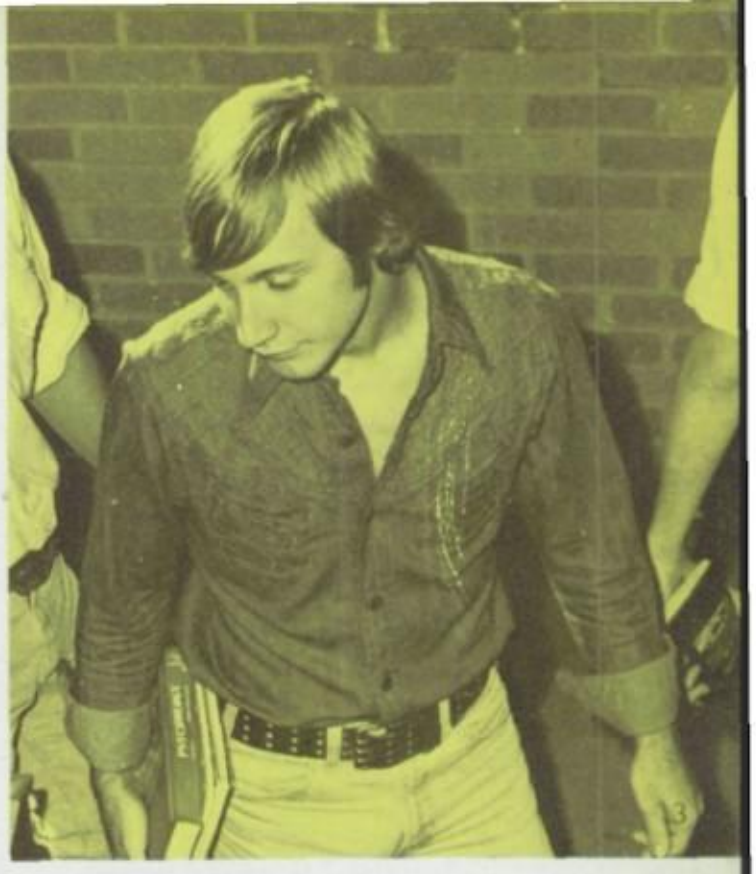
1. In religion class Tracy Janssen and Tracy Noerper share a Bible during a discussion.
2. Freshmen spend time discussing their classes.
3. Don Fanger rushes to meet the next sports page deadline.
4. Concert Band requires concentration by Debbie Wolf when she practices her clarinet.
5. Lois Meyer learns the difficulties of the handicapped by playing baseball with one leg.
6. Fred Flintstone finds himself impersonated by Hilary Recht during English I.
7. Kevin Hastings works on his Basic Business.

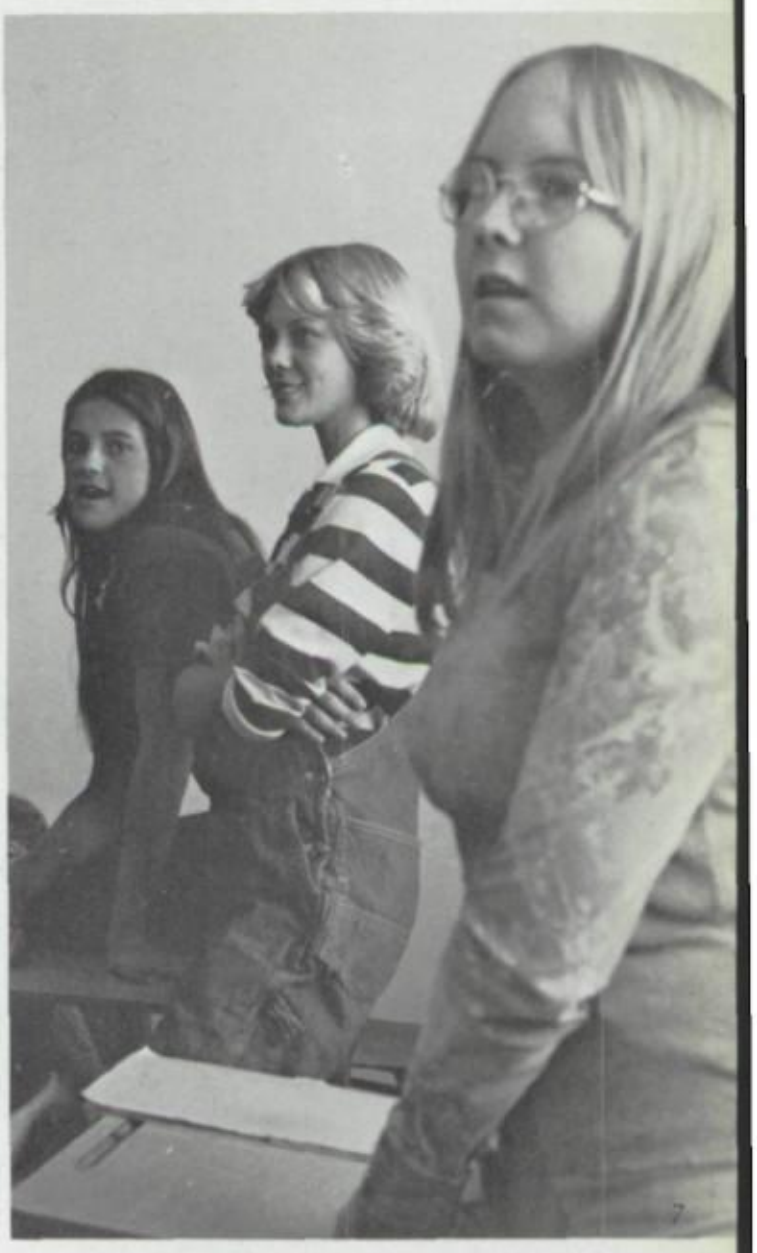


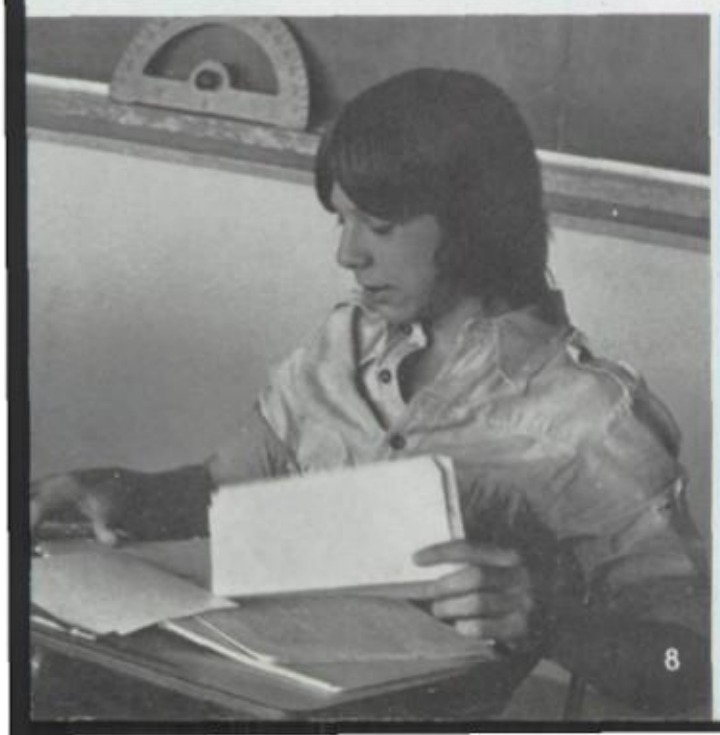
"Now that I am graduating, South gets all the neat stuff."

Lisa Kolander

Learning requires equipment and equipment requires money. At LHSS manpower is plentiful while money is often hard to come by. To get the most for the money, students, parents, and teachers have to work together. That's how it went the summer of '76. A pipe organ was donated and several students constructed it over the summer. The Mothers Club gave money for a darkroom and several parents offered their services as brick masons. A weight machine finally arrived at South, thanks to the efforts of students who earned the money for it.

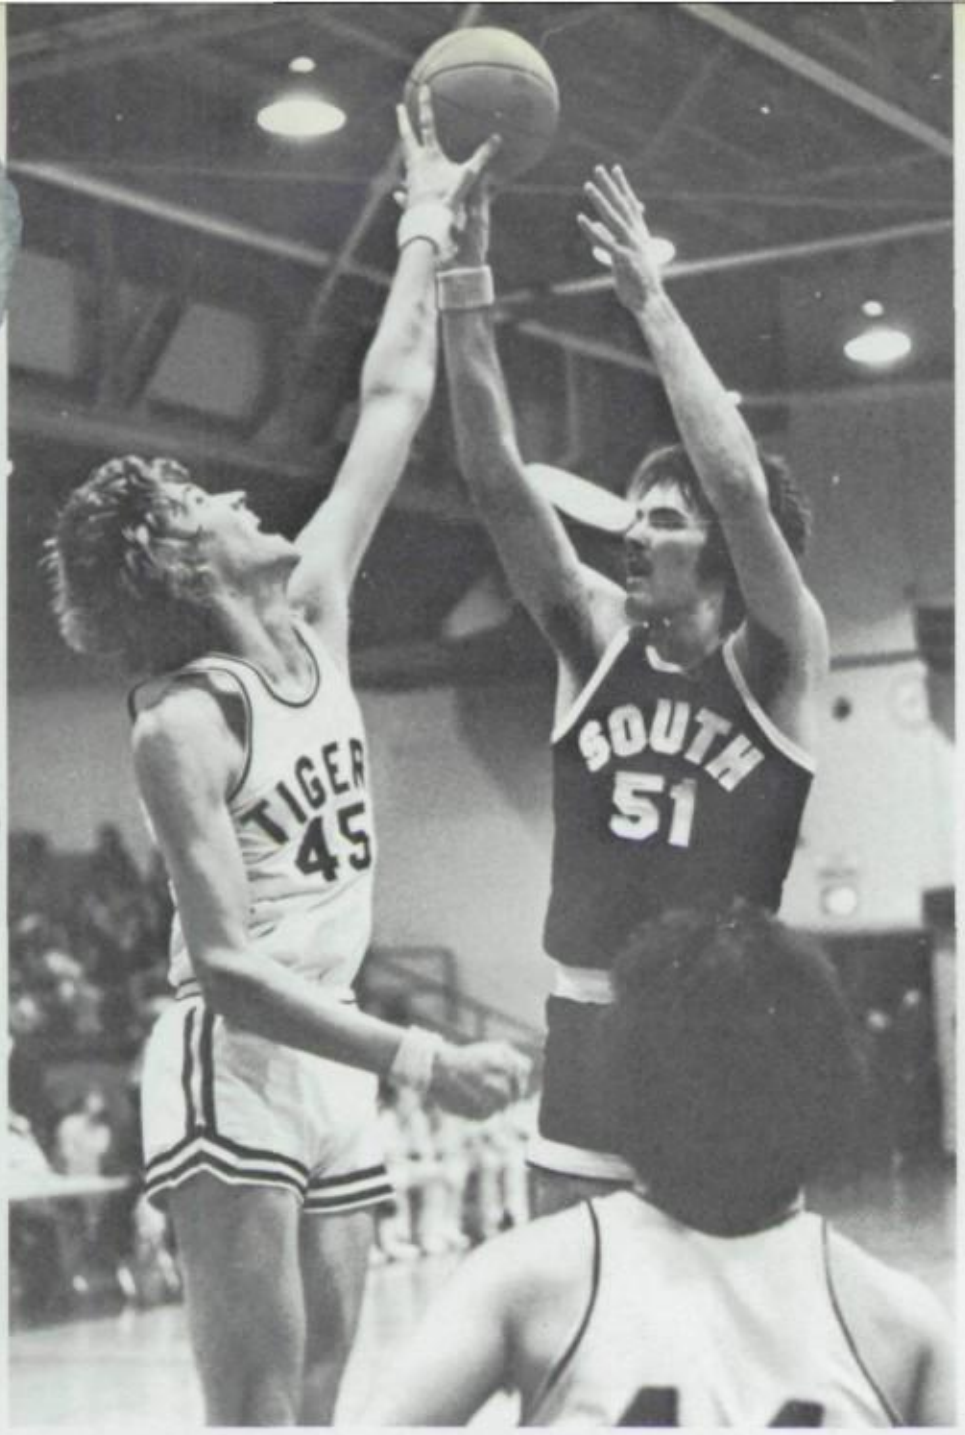






1. Marjie Von Fange prepares her paints in art class.
2. Members of the Religious Drama class practice a pantomime for chapel.
3. John Mueller makes his way down the stairs from Psychology class.
4. Jim Fobian practices a song for chapel.
5. Pam Schene checks the temperature in a chemistry lab.
6. Members of the Yearbook class find time to pose during a field trip to UMSL.
7. Lisa Sprague, Cheryl Ehrett, and Janice Haegele stay alive in a Spelling Bee between Children's Literature class and Miss Bollmann's English I class.
8. Geometry class proves to be challenging to Jim Balzer.

OPERATIONS



Three things that bring alot of the gears in South's machine together are:

Sports: Very well attended; many times thoughts of dying from clastrophobia enter peoples mind; typical scene is to see humans (?) chasing after a ball; crowded parking lot, many intentional lawn jobs are given to South grass.

Activities: Talked about months in advance, dances are usually crowded, most couples are lucky if they can find one square foot of dancing space. Posters are put up in the hallways and the event is announced daily over the intercom weeks before.

Service Organizations: Sometimes sponser activities, such as dances, contributions for the underprivileged and bake sales for the starving. Assist with such things as: choosing colors for the forms, sharpening pencils for teachers, putting magazines in alphabetical order and setting test tubes out for experiments.

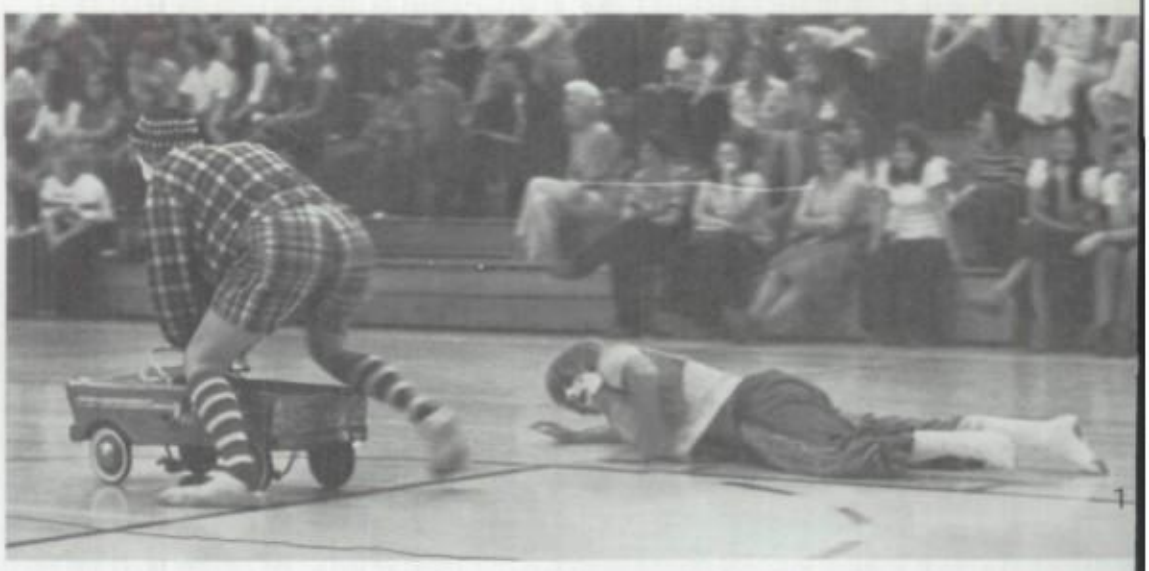
"Wanna buy a magazine?

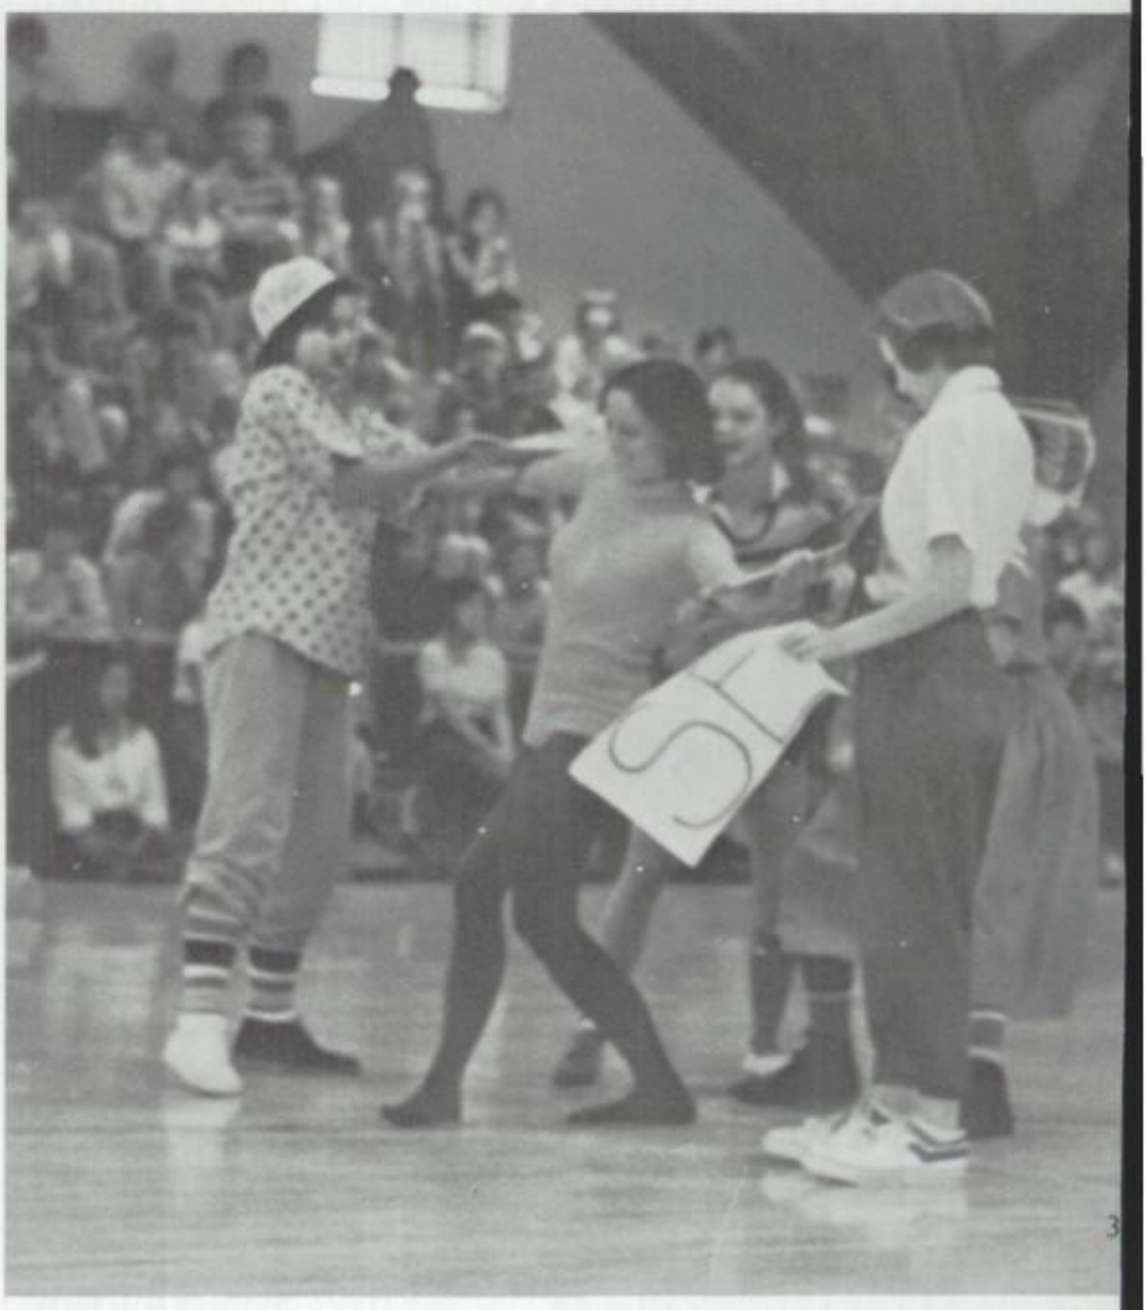
a senior

Once again, the students at South sold magazine subscriptions to anyone who would buy one, or two, or three . . .

Mr. Witt, the co-ordinator for the campaign, said that this year was the most successful campaign yet. Because the students earned most of the money, they voted on what they wanted to do with it.

Matt Prahlow received $100 for winning first prize. Ann Hoerber and Sheri Hartenberger came in 2nd and 3rd respectively. Mr. Bauer's first hour Chemistry, III, won the top homeroom.





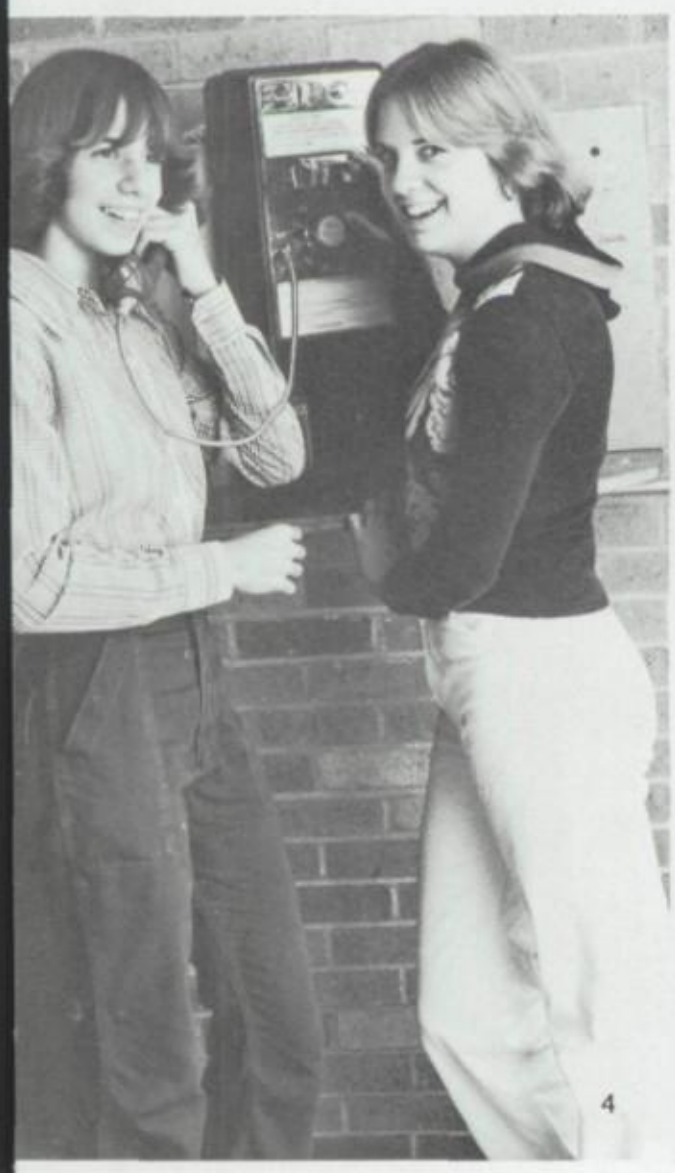
1. It's a race to the finish as Vicky Rueter pulls ahead of Jim Muhlenbruch.
2. Madame Zwallabawitz Labinski Klosnick Komosney (Ms. Bohllman) predicts the 1976 Magazine Campaign.
3. Senior clowns give support to Donna Farrow as she walks the tight rope.
4. Ring master Mark Spitz tames the prizes that could be won during the campaign.

Fads

What's new this year?

1. This company produced the original paint pants. 2. 10-20 on a CB means? 3. This piece of clothing got its name from the Argentinian cowboy. 4. Her pinups outsold Betty Grable's record sales. 5. This short originated from an English sport. 6. This monkey took the nation by storm. 7. This fast- food restaurant has holes in its hamburgers.

(Answers in index.)



1. John Brommer calls one of his good buddies, 10-4.
2. Ted Shear drives to school in his van.
3. Lori Haertling can only study if she has a headband to keep her hair out of her eyes.
4. Janet Meng in her army pants and Lynn Gaebler in paint pants chat on the phone, again.
5. Janie Tyner knows what it means to be in style, with her gaucho-boots outfit.

Practice perfects fall play

The 5th annual fall play was, "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Director, Richard Reiss said he chose that play because it gave him the chance to work with a large cast consisting of 30 students.

When several cast members were asked about Mr. Reiss' direction of the play, they replied, "He just has so much patience with us." Patience is just what everybody needed. Several difficulties arose during practice, but the most unique difficulty, he said, was providing a suitable Egyptian Mummy case. After exploring various possible resources, with no success, the props crew made its own.

Despite all the problems, Mr. Reiss said, "It was one of the most successful productions I've directed."

1. Banjo (Marty Schmidt) attempts to trap Loraine Sheldon (Diane Albers) in an Egyptian Mummy case.
2. Nurse Preen (Mary Birch) persuades Mr. Whiteside (Jim Fobian) to take his medicine.
3. Bert Jefferson (Dale Pritchard) and Maggie Cutler (Ruth Hartmeister) discuss their dilemma with Loraine.
4. Cast: (row 1) K. Dubberke, C. Curron, S. Spitz, S. Webber, J. Fobian, L. Martinelli, K. Morrow, M. Schmidt, R. Hartmeister, D. Pritchard, S. Zwart, M. Whistle, B. Eberle; (row 2) M. Birch, J. "Vote for who . . . . ?"

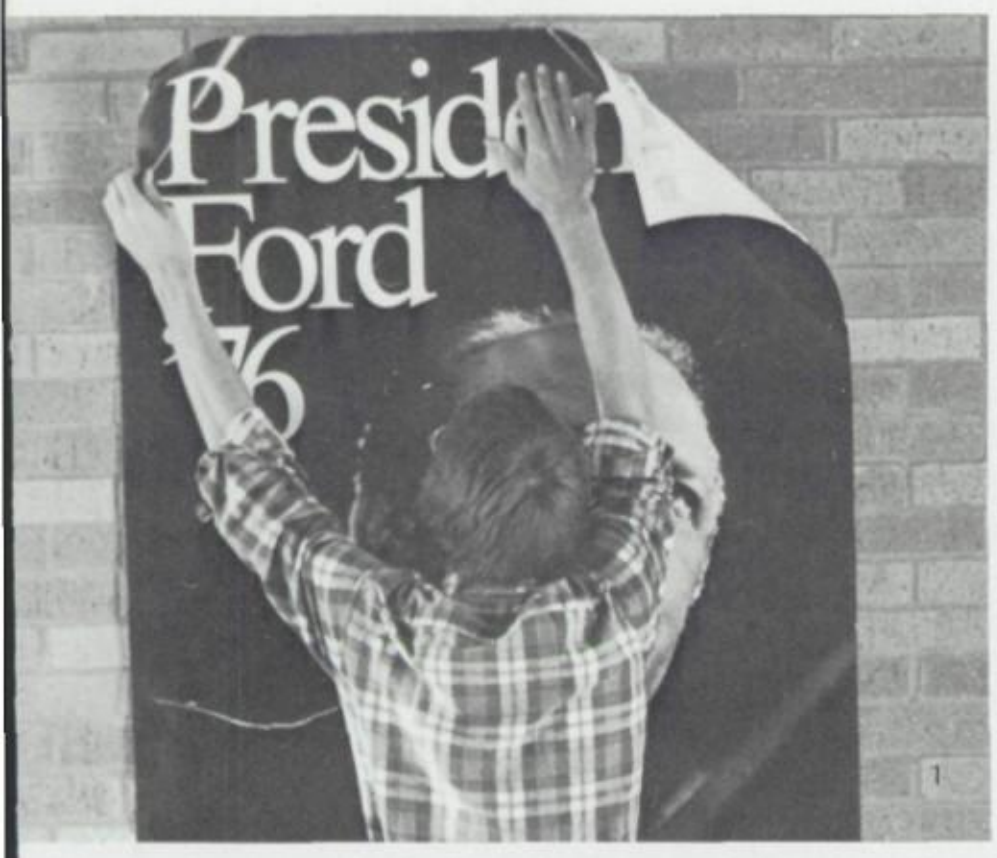
A Junior

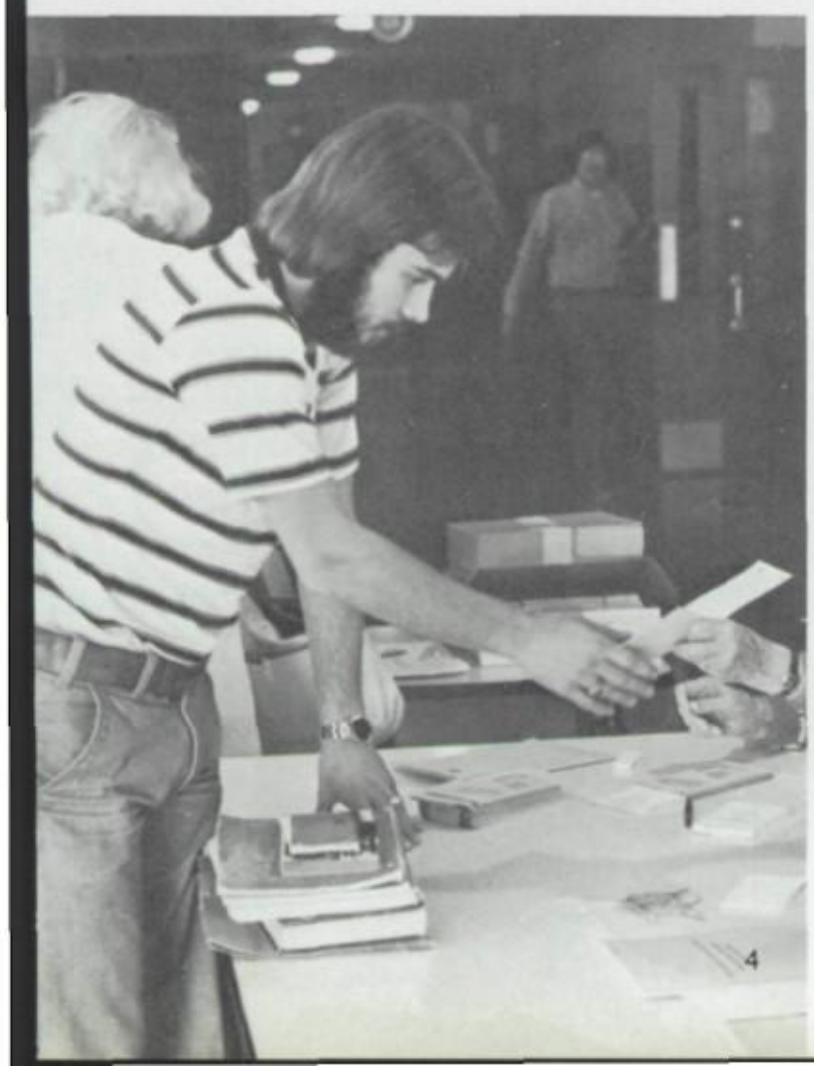


Two weeks before the 1976 Presidential Election, Lutheran South held a mock election. Mr. Dan Harms' Contemporary Issues class set up the election to be as realistic as possible.

The students and faculty had to show some kind of identification before they could register. About 50% of the school population registered, with about 87% of those registered voting.

Actual campaigning procedures were used. Everything was true to life except for the final results. At South, Ford won overwhelmingly.

The purpose of the mock election, said Mr. Harms, was to show the students how the system works. He wanted them to understand that voting is a privilege and is one of the best ways to express political ideas.



1. Scott Dickerhoff, Campaign Manager for President Ford, puts up a poster for the mock election.
2. Alex Milojevich signs in to vote in the '76 election.
3. Alex casts his vote in a punch card voting booth, a type now used in St. Louis County.
4. Officials check the ballot to make sure everything has been done properly.
5. Alex deposits his ballot in the official ballot box. This national election was the second in which 18-year-olds were eligible to vote.

"One of the best homecomings I've been to." -a sophomore

Friday, October 22, started off the Homecoming weekend with the Coronation Dance. "Beside You All The Way" was the theme chosen for this event and the theme song, "If" was sung by the band, Allspice. When the band stopped for a break, everyone was anticipating the announcement of the 1976 Homecoming Queen and her court.

Preparing for the dance, Student Council spent Friday, working on decorating the gym with yellow, maroon, and white streamers. They also had the unglamorous job of cleaning it up Saturday morning.

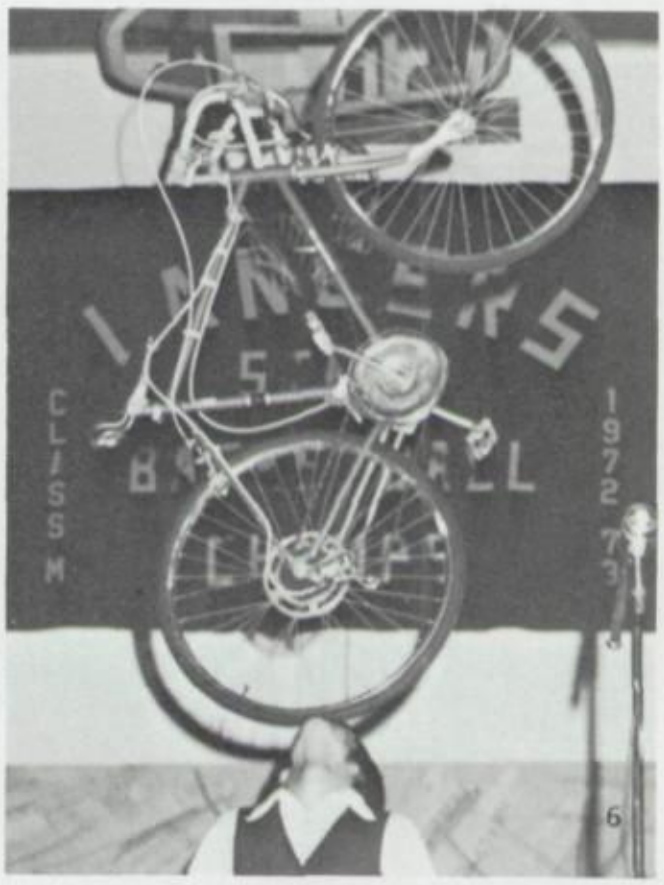
"My first Lancer Day and I almost drowned!" -a freshman

The 1976 Homecoming may be remembered as the muddiest event in LHSS's history. The rain started pouring down Saturday morning. As a result, C-team-football and powderpuff were cancelled and the games were moved inside the school. B-football team battled to a tie while Varsity suffered a loss to Priory.

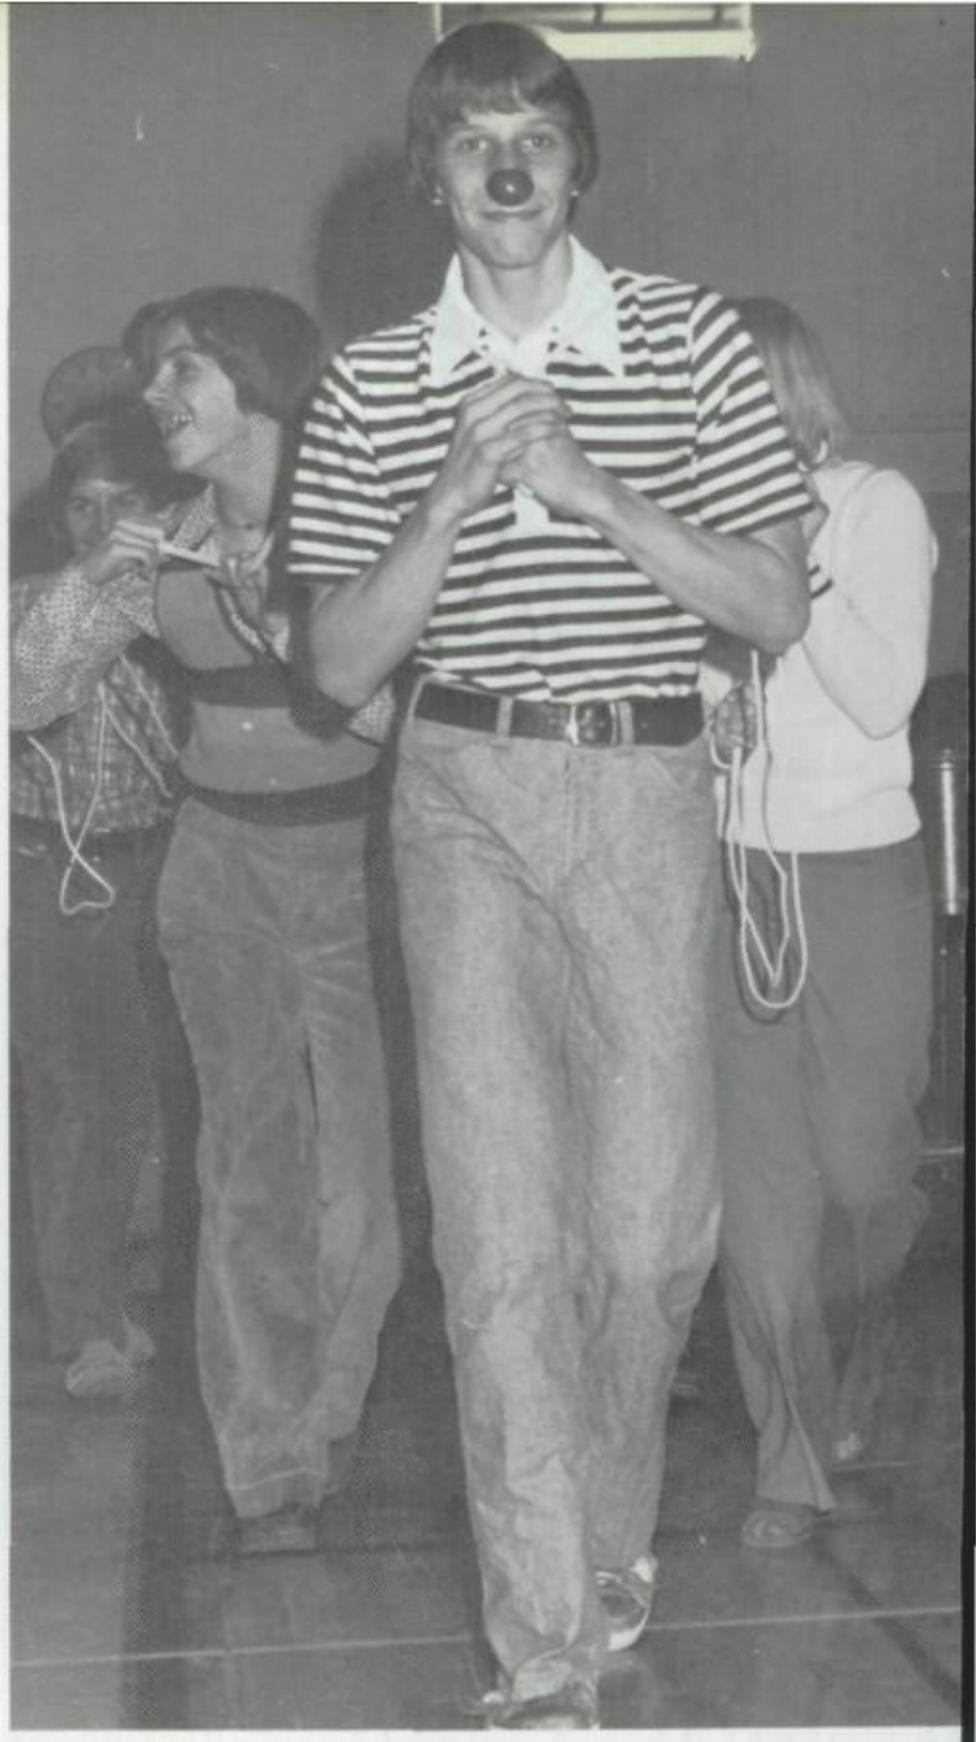
The evening's entertainment included a dance number by the Concert Choir. The Jazz and Concert bands made their debut with classical and popular music. Solos, skits, and songs made up the Variety Show.

1. Lancerettes perform to music, played by South's band.
2. Trumpet players Jack Umbach, and Dan Shear, add to the bands performance.
3. Sally Leopold and her father, enjoy the roast beef dinner sponsered by the Boosters on Lancer Day.
4. John Doerr disguises himself as a mudball and slips by his opponents.
5. "And after we are gone from here, happy we will be," sang the Seniors.
6. Gill Wagner receives a standing ovation for his outstanding balancing act.
7. In spite of the rain, Lancer fans stick together to support their football team.
8. Juniors, Mike Avery, Steve Lochman, Marty Schmidt, and Mark Trusheim harmonize on "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."
9. Silhoetted against the spotlighgt, Ron Dessau, makes a grand performance at the piano.



"Christmas is the best time of the year." a sophomore

During the holiday season, you can't get away from the Christmas spirit at South. Everyone is busy with special activities such as; carolling through the halls, having a picture taken with Santa, a special communion chapel, the annual Christmas assembly and the first Christmas dance. But despite the last minute hurrying and rushing around, Christmas is a joyful time.



1. Tanya Hogrebe, Sharon Nueman and Jim Ederle celebrate the last day of school before the holidays.
2. Rob DeRouse leads his team of reindeer on their appointed route during the assembly.
3. Sophomores take a break from the dance floor.
4. Louise Sausele and Kathy Schrank dancing to the music of Nickel.
5. Ron Dessau gives Lisa Kolander a twirl to the music.
6. Matt Prahlow tells Santa, Steve Mueller, what he wants for Christmas.
7. Every Lancer has his or her own dance.

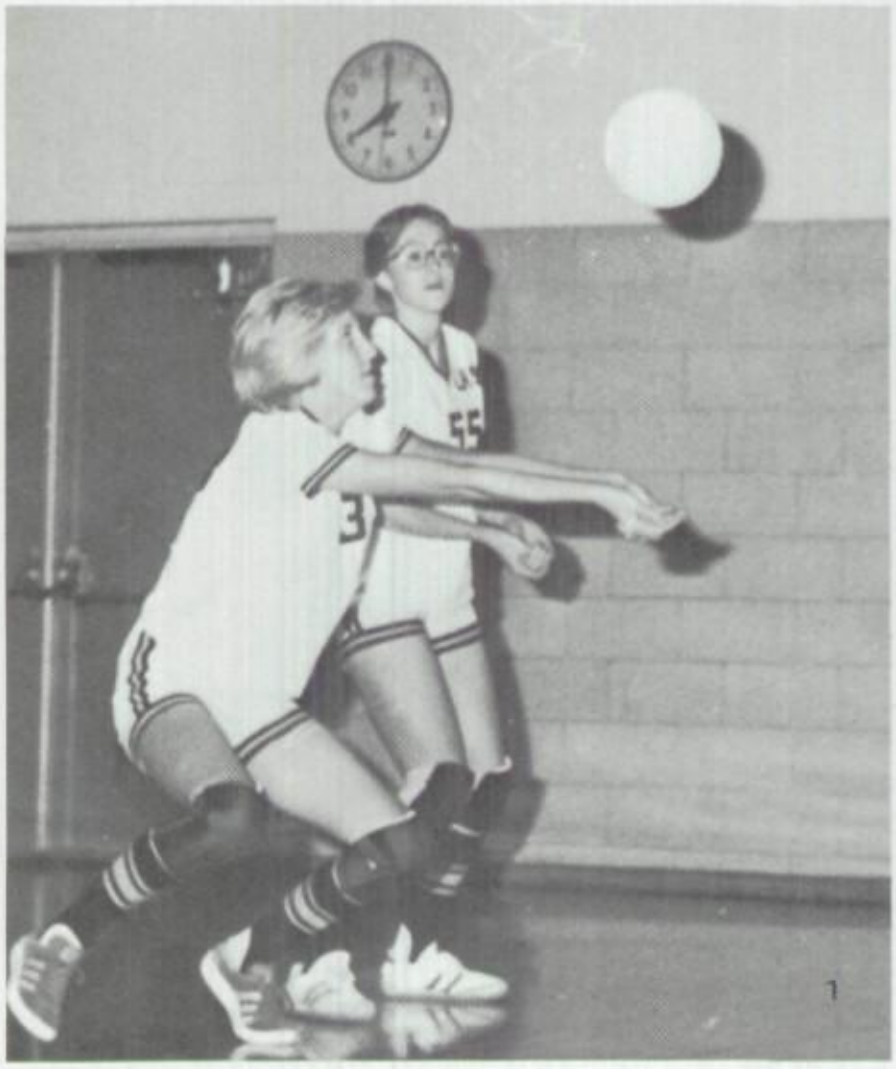
SPORTS



"The change in season improved competition."

Laura McBride

Volleyball season was moved from the spring to the fall this year so South could enter the State competition. The girls, however, could not capitalize on the change.

The Varsity season ended at 7-8. Coach Hynous explained, "It was our first losing record in a few years, but the competition was harder because of the season move." South wasn't easily defeated and many games were lost by only one point. Ann Hoerber was selected as the MVP.

Mostly freshmen made up the B-team squad. Coach Markle said they found the Catholic teams tough to beat. After an end of the season slump they ended at 8-4.

1. A bump from Diane Meyer saves the play, while Chris Rueter backs her up.
2. Varsity Captain Diane Albers dinks the ball over a North blocker.
3. A hard drive by Dawn Meyer gets by the opponent.

8. Sheryl Ehrett and Diane Albers double block against DuBourg.

Varsity football: "fun and bad breaks."

For Varsity football, '76 was a rebuilding year. The six sophomores and ten juniors who will return next season are optimistic about South's chances for victory.

Coach Holsten said the Lancers played good defense this season. South was unable however to keep the ball long enough to do any good, he said.

This year's team had a good offensive squad, players agree, with their best performance being against Principia. With most of the offense and all of the defense returning next year, one player commented, "We can do some good stuff next year."

"The spirit was willing but the flesh was weak," commented guard Greg Bryant, a junior. One offensive tackle summed up the year: "We had a lot of fun and a lot of bad breaks."

"Experience is vital for a winning season." Roger Bettlach

"This was the best season we've had in four years," exclaimed B-team football Coach Behling. "The kids showed determination even when they were down and then came back and performed well." The team scored a record of 89 points and ended the season at 2-2-1 in the ABC League, which tied them for third place. Their over all record was 2-4-1.

C-team football was very inexperienced this year. "Not many of our players played in leagues prior to coming here," said Coach Reck. The team was able to make consistant offensive gains in many games. Their final record was 0-6-1.

"How can we play so well and still only tie?"

Coach Wietfeldt

Field Hockey got an early start this year by beginning practice late in August. According to one team-member, "It was no fun getting up and practicing from 8 to 10 in the morning."

Varsity was evenly matched with their opponents and scored consistently throughout the season. They concluded with a record of 1-5-4. The Most Valuable Players were Sharon Eggerding and Cindy Korte.

B-team experienced some difficulties in getting points on the board although Coach Wietfeldt said they played well as a team . Gini Whistle was chosen as the teams Most Improved Player.

"South spirit brings us through good times and bad." A Fan

It's easy to support a winning team, but you can't win all the time. That's why the Lancer fans are a boost to the players moral at our sports activities. They are always present no matter how the season is going.

The Pep Club helps by planning the pep assemblies to promote spirit among the students. The cheerleaders also participate in the assemblies, but their biggest obligation is to the spectators at the game. Win or lose they unite the fans in cheering a team to their best.

"It can take 10 hours to put together a 5 minute routine." Julie Johnson

The Lutheran South pom-pom squad, known as the Lancerettes, is another group that works to improve the enthusiasm of the students towards sports. They perform at many of the school's special events. The girls find themselves frequently learning new routines and spend many hours practicing after school.

The Lancerettes took third place in the speed-learning category at a pom-pom clinic Lindbergh held earlier this year. The squad, comprised primarily of sophomores, feels they are gaining valuable experience for next year.

"B-teams hope to continue good start."

A large number of returning players provided a lot of experience for the Girls B-Basketball team. Their coach, Miss Wietfeldt, was pleased with the seasons progress. She noticed a steady improvement.

The Boys B-team also got a good start. They took the Hancock Tournament early in the season. Coach Torbeck felt the team was really beginning to jell. Halfway through the season they were undefeated and seeded first in the ABC League.

"Bad weather causes major changes in the soccer schedule"

Coach Faszholz was optimistic about the Varsity soccer season, although he hadn't coached a varsity soccer team since 1969. He saw a lot of improvement among the players. The weather would not cooperate and since the ABC League doesn't play when the wind chill is below zero many games were called off.

"It's hard to keep practicing when you don't have any games." Bruce Rehmer

The B-Soccer season started with an important win that boosted the guy's moral. Coach Witt explained, "They learned to play together well, but had a bad luck season." The weather was no help as it delayed many practices."

C-Soccer has also had a frustrating season. Most of their games were canceled by the weather. But Coach Stretelmeier feels they are very dedicated, considering their season might run till March.

"It's more than just a game"

One of the most unpredictable things is the outcome of a sports contest. After hours of sweat and preparation there is still no way of being sure of the victor. Many times the predicted winner is upset and the underdog comes through. The many different variables of sports such as injuries, fouls, sickness, and weather cause every encounter to be a challenge.

Sports can teach us a lot about ourselves. Many emotions are brought out by the physical exertions. Just watching invites many people to get involved. Playing team sports is also a learning process. The participants must understand and work with each other to score. But each athelete can feel proud when he accomplishes an individual goal.

GROUPS

"We work for both the school and the community."

Two gears that keep the South machine running smoothly are the Honor Society and Student Council. Some activities that Honor Society lead are collecting goods for the prisoners in the city jail, tutoring underclassmen, collecting money for diabetes, bake sales and sponsoring a Volleyball Marathon. Student Council meets once a week and discusses upcoming business. Just one activity they participate in is planning dances. A Christmas dance planned by Student Council was well-received. Instead of having a Queen or King, that was omitted and in its place a pandomime by Religious Drama class was performed.

3. Diana Carls tutors Lynn Uetrecht in Algebra I.
4. Student Council's work makes dances like the Coronation a success.

"Chapel is a good way to start the day."

The success of the Chapel program goes to these three gears. The Chapel Committee gets together and plans chapels that are up-to-date, and that hold the listeners attention. The chapel crew is responsible for the bleachers being out and the sound system being on. They're the ones who get the big hand when a table needs to be moved or the projector malfunctions. The organists are the ever-present producers of the melodies that make chapels complete.

"Practice is essential to produce good music."

Under the direction of the new band man, Mr. Eischer, the band program has almost come alive overnight. The band always livens up athletic events and pep assemblies. Dave Gesko, a trombone player, said "Jazz Band gives us a chance to express ourselves through our instruments." Shedding the marching uniforms of the band they take on the characteristics of a concert band. Even though it is and extra-curricular activity, the jazz band practices hard and cooperates very well with Mr. Eischer. The result is a great sound which must be heard to be believed.

Choir finds quality in quantity.

Due to the abundance of talented singers this year, Mr. Henry Engelhardt has given the school the Economy Size Choir. Combining 138 voices into one large package of hard work and long hours, he has produced a beautiful noise, trimmed with enthusiasm and excellence. This product is refined and purified every day during second hour and is a great success on the local market in annual concerts and at area churches. Plans are being made for the possibility of appearances on the worldwide market, as the choir hopes to return to Europe in the summer of '78.

"I hope I never have to meet another deadline."

Technical media terms:
Wooblies - are pieces of dust on photographs, resembles long white worm, usually goes through center of picture.
Deadline - torture for only the fittest, like a no sleep marathon, something not to talk about in front of an editor unless properly protected.
"I need that picture soon." - really means, "I needed that picture five days ago."
Layout - combination of pictures and copy that never seem to fit.
Mole - a person who has spent too many hours in the dark developing pictures.
"Can you take this picture?" - actually has undertones that say, "You will take this picture."
Contact Book - something that is always in the darkroom when you need it.

"Just gave the muscle work to us."

The success of plays and concerts depends on the hard work of the stage, light, and sound crews. Members of stage crew use class time to carry risers and stage pieces to the gym. For all productions the stage crew puts up and takes down the stage. The light crew directs spotlights and replaces light bulbs. Sound crew members test microphones and speakers with the ever-present slogan "testing-one-two-three" to assure perfect sound. Under the direction of Mr. Carlton the crews with buttons with the "S" on them do a speedy job.

Dispatched from their headquarters in the library they assist teachers in the job of distributing knowledge through the use of this media. These people are the projectionists who are seen pushing film projectors and the video-tape or carrying record players and tape recorders.

"We aim to help out."

The small gears are hardly noticed, but are essential for a smooth running machine. These gears may only be represented by a few people, but their work is a great help. The bookstore assistants distribute needed materials for school life. Guidance assistants help Mr. Rohde and Mr. Roma in shaping futures and helping around the counselors office. Office assistants collect attendance slips for Mr. Grundmann and run errands for the secretaries. Gym assistants help P.E. teachers in keeping students in line while exercising. Lab assistants prepare solutions and help set up tests for the science department. Library assistants help keep the library in order and help people check out books.

Components

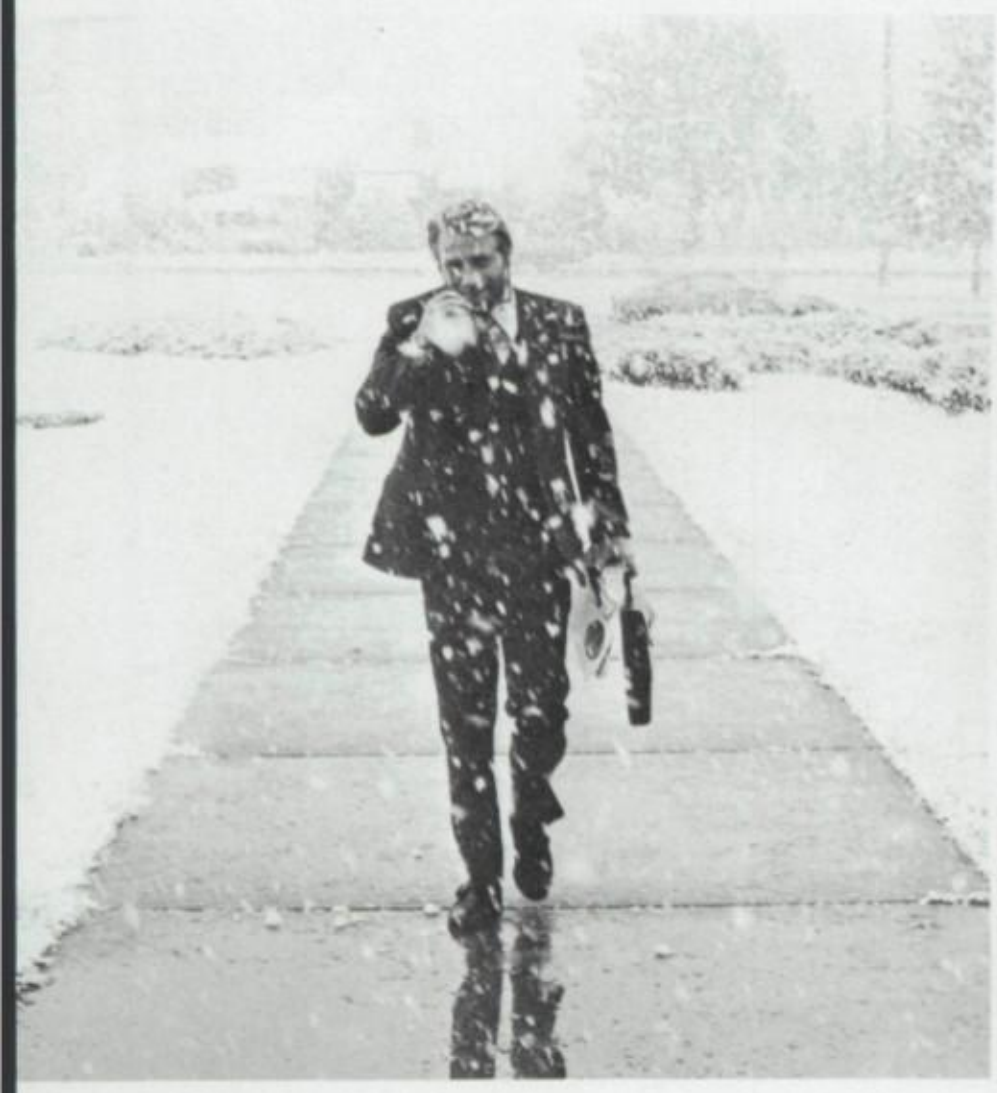
The South machine is comprised of five major parts:

Freshmen: 14-years-old; four feet tall; generally tend to look up to seniors; often have lost look on face; frequently run to class.

Sophomores: 15-years-old; in process of adapting to dating; study feverishly for driver's permit test; secure, due to seniority in class ranks.

Juniors: 16-years-old; smile due to removal of braces; drive parents' car to school during good weather; finally upperclassmen.

Seniors: 17-years-old; seven feet tall; the upperclass; males may grow beards; tend to count days until graduation; can be seen picking on freshmen (see above).



Faculty: 22-years-old and older; have harrassed look; suspicious of anyone 21 and under; retreat to faculty lounge between classes; like homework and tests.

Faculty

"A school is a democratic community," was the thought expressed by Dr. Wiesner when asked about Lutheran South. Everyone in the school from the students, faculty, administration, cooks and custodians has had a part in this community. This community works as one like a set of gears work together, or a community works together.

Re: Underclassmen pictures

Underclassmen pictures will be taken on Tuesday this year. Just to be confusing, we are doing things differently. Instead of going alphabetically by class, they will be going by homeroom (a list is attached); students should have their picture taken when their homeroom is scheduled no matter where they are at that time.

We had considered having them go from tallest to shortest.

If the kids have any problems don't send them to me.

Freshmen

Dear Joe,
If you don't get this note and someone else does tell them not to look at it and give it to you. I knew you would have trouble with this history test so I will help you. On the multiple choice, they are in a pattern of A, B, C, D except for number 43 which is D or maybe it was B but it could have been number 33. The true-false are all true except about half of them which are false. The rest of the answers are engraved in the bottom of the desk in braille. If Mr. Schroeder asks what you are doing feeling the bottom of the desk, tell him you lost your gum.

How are you? I'm fine. Listen, ever since the first day of school I've been trying to find the elevators. I bought this elevator pass from this nice senior. I'd really like to find these elevators, I think it would make it a lot easier to get to class. That reminds me, I was late to class and Mr. Grundmann sent me to the office. He's always yelling at me to get my greasy head off of his wall. He's so funny! Ha Ha Ha!!! He's walking over here now, so I've got to go. See ya!!

Gym class is really neat! We are square dancing. My partner all yesterday was the boy's gym assistant. He's a senior you know and he's so much more mature than all the freshmen guys put together and plus he's even taller than me. He must have taken lessons in square dancing because he is even better than Rev. Faszholz. I felt really dumb cause I kept tripping over my feet. I hope he doesn't think I'm a clod. Tonight I'm going to go home and practice all the steps.

All the teachers think their class is the only one you have. He also gave us about 10 maps we have to know. Who cares how many gallons of water is in Lake Superior. Not me! AFTER A HARD WORKOUT in gym I decided to spare my next hour classmates by taking a shower. The water was on and as I stepped into the shower area my foot rested on top of the biggest cockroach I'd ever seen. I heard his back crunch under the pressure of my foot and I let out a yell which brought the whole class running. By the sound of my yell, they had expected to see me on the floor just shot or at least in cardiac arrest. At that point I decided that I must never again take a shower in gym class. Either I wouldn't dress out for a semester and get an F or I'd just stand around and not work up a sweat and receive a D. I knew I could no longer have my 4.0 grade average but it was that or give up my sanity.

FRESHMAN YEAR, WHEN STREAKING was the thing to do, I'll never forget when it came to South. I was sitting in Lab Science when suddenly I heard this noise from the hall that sounded like a herd of cows. I looked out the door and there were these five naked bodies running down the hall. Next thing I knew my whole class was staring down the hall. One girl got so excited she broke two test tubes. Another girl got so embarassed her face was dark as blood. It was great because the rest of the hour we spent trying to guess who they were.

At the end of freshman initiation I was running from pre-algebra into religion, when I reached two feet from the door, five sophomores stopped and asked me if I wanted them to sign my paper bib. I hurriedly told them no because I had to go to class, I'd find them later. It seems they had a hearing problem and went ahead and signed my bib, telling me that I needed 77 signatures to get into the Freshman Assembly. I really didn't care but I didn't tell them this. When they were finished with me I went to the drinking fountain and was grabbed by two seniors. They said they were going to kidnap me and make me a slave to them in Siberia. One of them had a locker by the drinking fountain and he came up with this bright idea to put me in his locker. He didn't have any books in there because he already knew everything. I stepped in the locker screaming about how I have claustrophobia, they laughed and told me this was alot better than Siberia. After 15 minutes they set me free. I walked into class and my teacher asked me if I had a green pass. I-I don't have one I stuttered. TARDY! screamed my teacher. B-But I was kidnapped, I protested. My class burst into hysterics. I sat down and proceeded to die of embarassment.

Where else would you find a girl that every day opens up a peanut butter and jelly sandwich and starts singing, "If you believe in peanut butter, clap your hands . . . " After about 20 verses of that she'll stand up, clap her hands four times and yell, "I believe." Then our table is serenaded with her singing, "A kid's world is a special world and Hostess is a part of it. Hostess and kid's, they go together." SNOW DAYS AT SOUTH have always been exciting. The problem has been calling home to get somebody to pick you up — there's always a line a block long at each phone. However, usually one of the phones is out of order. Freshman year we had a lot of snow days, but we ended up coming to school on Washington's Birthday to make up the school day. Even the teachers stare out the windows when it snows. Rev. Faszholz said the soccer field had a sign saying "I'm not playable," the time it snowed right before Thanksgiving.

IN JUNIOR YEAR AROUND Christmas time, my best friend kept telling me how she had found the perfect present for me. By Christmas Eve I could no longer stand the suspense, I told her I'd let her open her present if she'd let me open mine. She fell for it. I quickly tore the paper off and revealed a Pet Rock. It wasn't exactly what I had expected but it's the thought that counts. She told me she'd help me train my pet to sit, walk and even become paper trained. She excitedly asked me what I was going to name my pet. I couldn't think of a proper name at that second. Turns out I named it after her.

IN SCIENCE WE LEARNED about survival of the fittest. I guess that guy must have gone to high school. In freshmen year, we just tried to survive being the shortest kids in a brand new place. When we were sophomores, we had to survive giving a speech in front of 25 other people.

Junior year was just a series of survival tests-more homework, harder classes, more dates, more problems. Now that I'm a senior, I'm just worried about how I'm going to survive after I graduate and have to go out in the world.

1976 was a very red, white, and blue year.

Steve Hick

1976 was full of happenings. It was a Bicentennial year. Everything seemed to turn commercial, from Bicentennial minutes on TV, to Bicentennial cement trucks, and even the money was patriotic. Throughout America, people celebrated 200 years of freedom.

In Washington, President Ford was to become the first lame duck president since Herbert Hoover. A relatively unknown candidate from Plains, Georgia, Jimmy Carter captured the majority of votes, becoming the first Southern President since Reconstruction.

In sports, there was the Olympics. At 14, Nadia Comaneci became the first gymnast to receive a perfect score. She won 3 gold medals and captured 5 perfect scores. Bruce Jenner, an American, became the first to win the decathlon. Jenny Chandler, also American won the hearts of many as she dove to success.

Barbara Walters broke a journalistic barrier as she became co-anchorman with Harry Reasoner on ABC at an annual salary of one million dollars.

The nation was scared with threats of a swine flu epidemic. A nationwide inoculation program had to be stopped because it was thought that the shots led to a paralysis. Women were finally enrolled at the military academies.

Inflation continued to rise, while farmers suffered. Coffee prices escalated almost as far as oil prices.

With the New Year came a new President and a new Missouri governor, and the coldest day (-10) in 112 years.

Are all the gears alike in the machine?

No! Just the opposite. Each part is an exceptional gear in itself. It functions in its own way and has characteristics all its own. It is a rare and individual piece of the machine working here at South.

1. Troubadour editor Laura McBride works with Mark Doering on a story idea.
2. Michelle Detjen enjoys a joke in Home Ec class.
3. Cindy Drake brings home her cheerleading uniform for a basketball game the next night.
4. The art of decorating cakes is demonstrated to the girl's Home Ec class by Loren Muench.
5. Ed Moorehead is hassled by Karl Kuhlmann and Greg Bryant while trying to work on the lights for the Christmas Concert.
6. At a home game Coach Holsten watches his Lancers play Country Day.
7. A geography lecture fails to capture John Severino's interest.
8. In the girl's lockerroom after a gym class the girls tried to see how many persons they could squeeze into a bathroom.

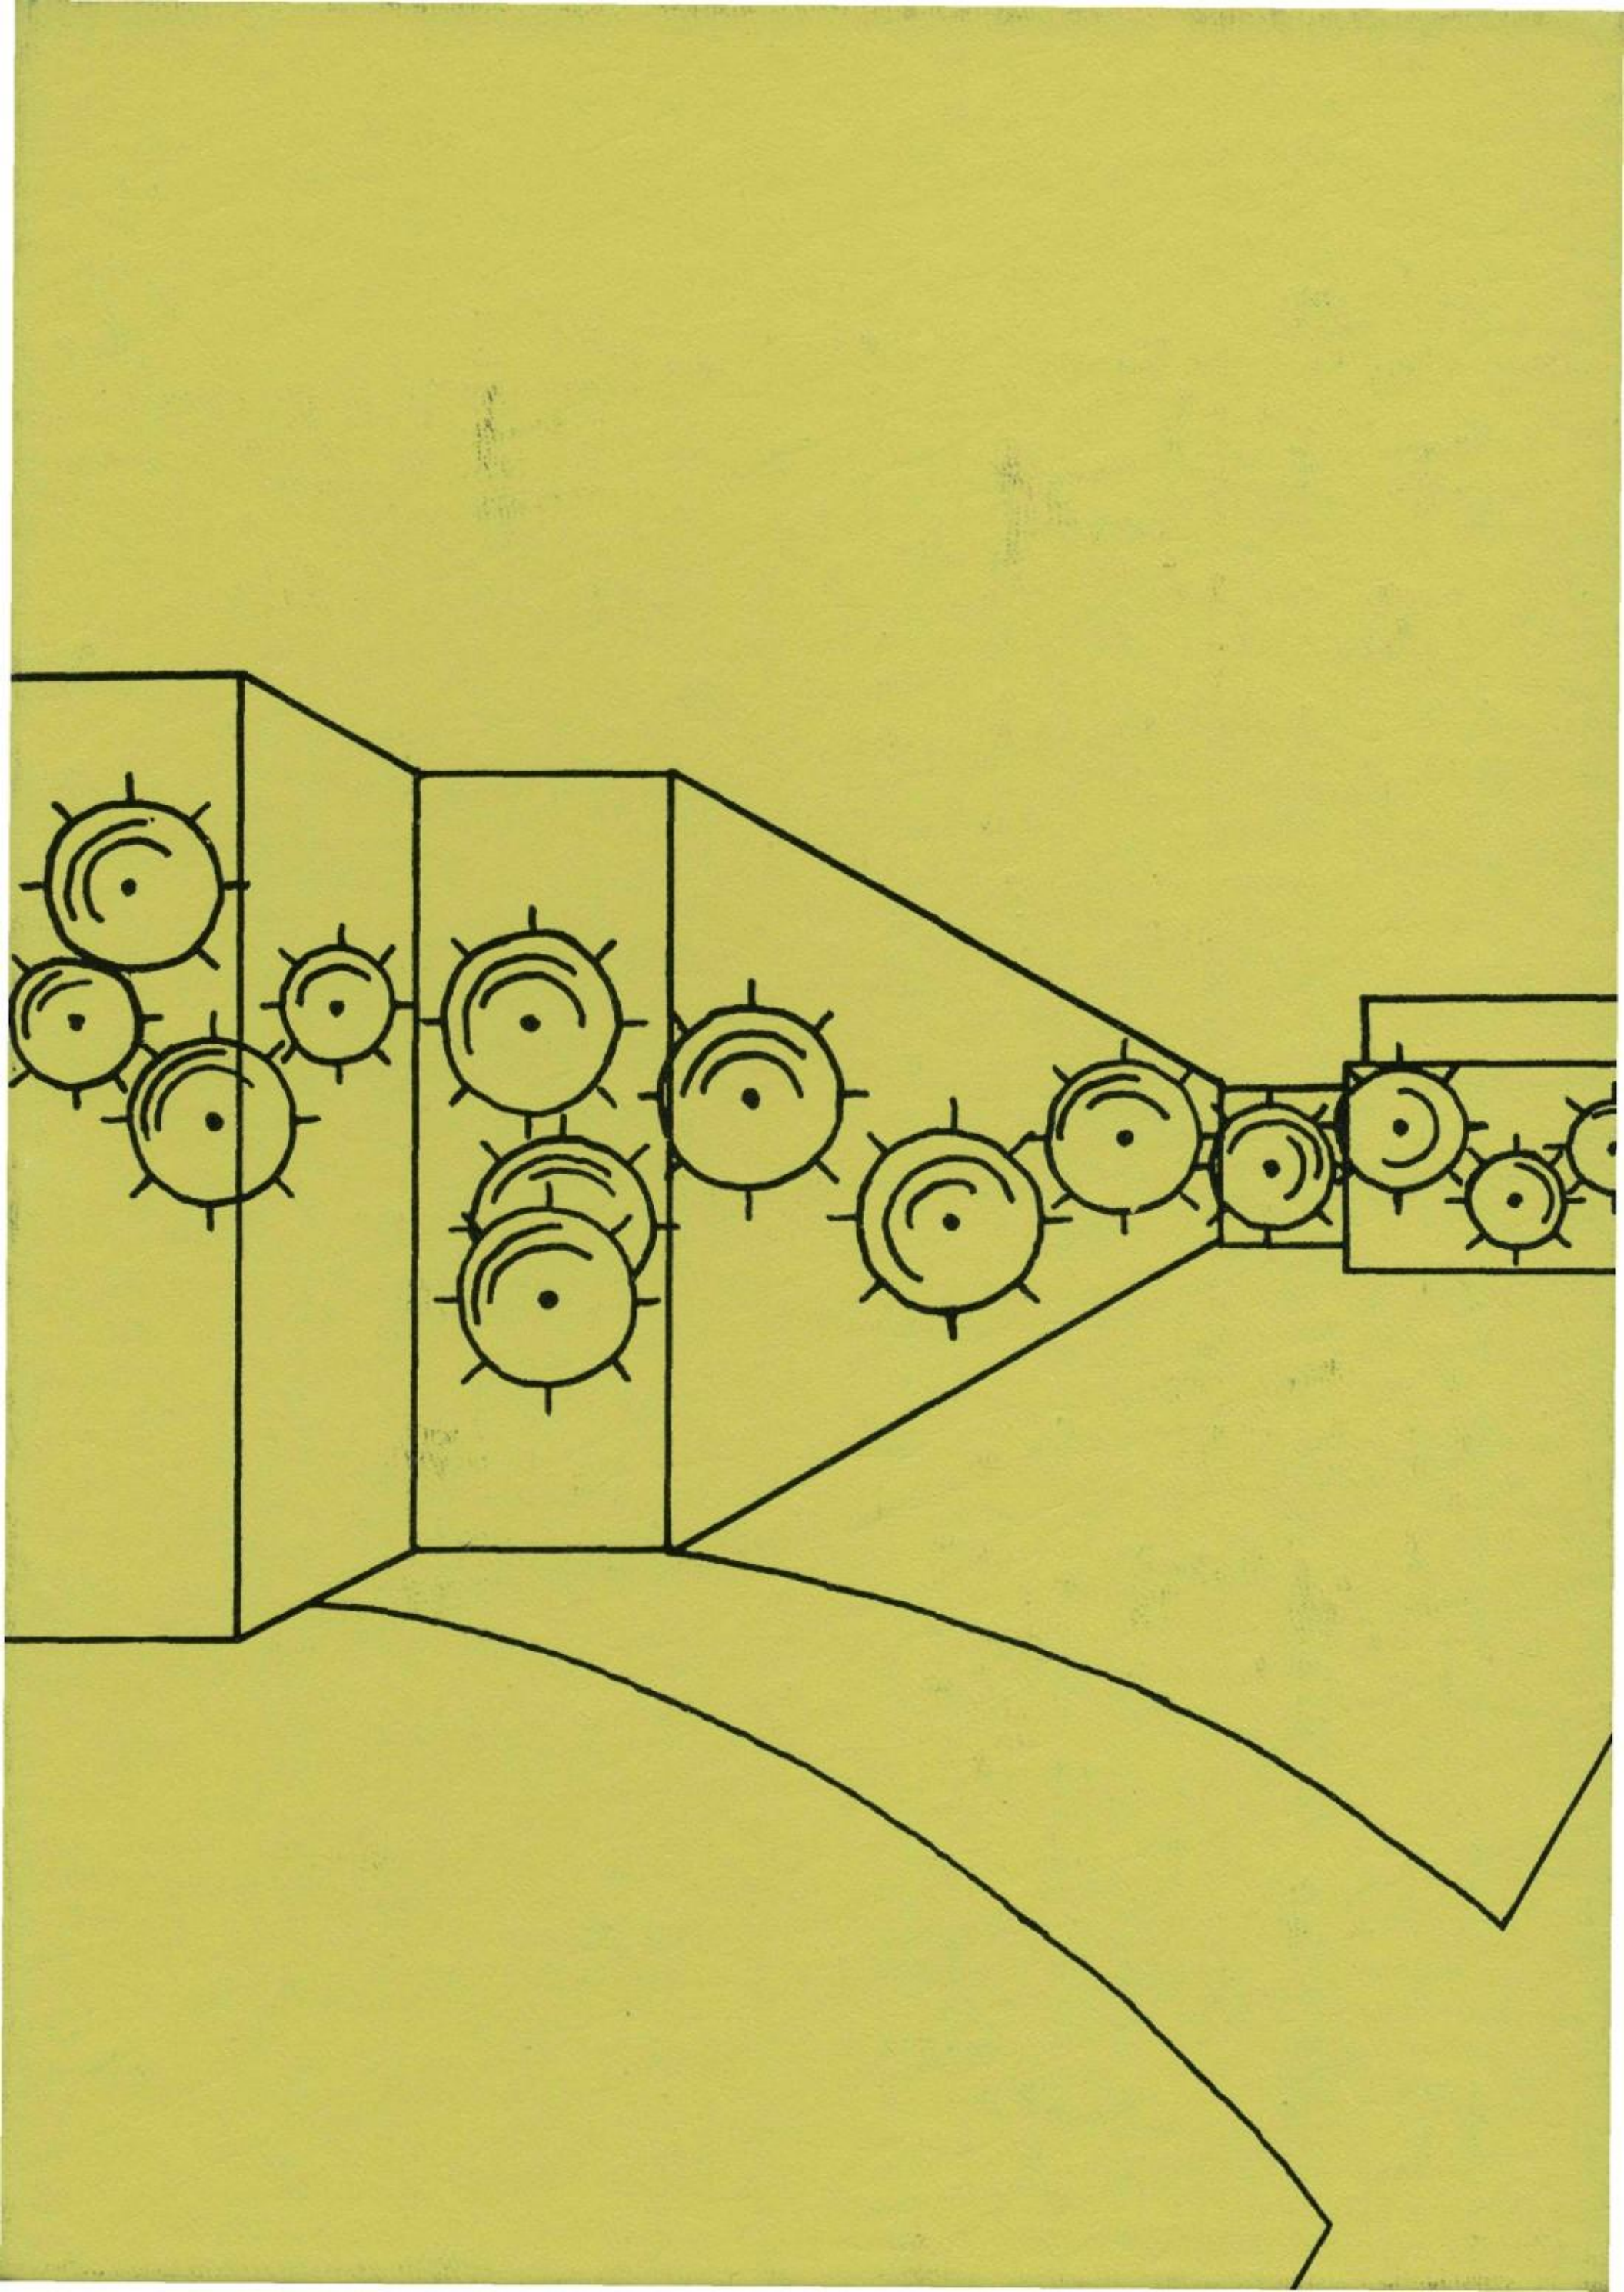
To all those on the Yearbook staff who sacrificed watchi Sunday football at home and came up to school to watch t game on a 5X7 screen while working on their pages. To thc people who went and sold ads and heard replies such as: "O office is in Brazil, I'm so sorry." "Our manager isn' here rig now, we're expecting him here in the year 2001, if you'd like wait . . ." To the people who cursed 3-C's, 3-R's, conta books, picas and DEADLINES. To those wonderful mol who spent half their life printing pictures for nagging edito To those whose skin dried and aged about 60 years wh working with chemicals in the darkroom. To all those w made 207 a home away from home. To those who hold a pi ruler, grease pencil, and cropper dear to their heart, a spec thanks is given. To Ms. Strieb who was an endless supply inspiration, without her this year's LANCE would just another yearbook to sit on the self and collect dust. To Ji Combs who introduced us to Signacolor and helped us g through our first color yearbook. To American Yearbo Company who prints our book in Topeka, Kansas. Especial to Guise Studios, who helped us meet deadlines by giving the needed pictures on time, and also helped to start t darkroom. Appreciation is given to all these people w helped produce this year's LANCE.

Helen Yang


The 1977 LANCE in the opening section had Signacolor, 60% Tempo 539, processed color 100% blue, 30% red. Endsheets are ivory. Silk-screen cover, yellow with applied black. Paper is 60 pound gloss. Headlines were in 18 point Century Schoolbook, Body copy was 10 point Century Schoolbook, and cutlines were set in 8 point Century Schoolbook. General Index was in 6 point Century Schoolbook.
